TOMBSTONE

An original screenplay
By Kevin Jarre

Fourth draft
March 15, 1993
ROLL PROLOGUE OVER MAIN TITLE: a collage of old photos, prints, etc., and silent live-action vignettes, all dark and heavily shadowed like a dimly-remembered dream. The first images show the opulence of the Gilded Age, the epic vistas of the west, cattle drives and cowtowns with all their violence....

V.O. NARRATION
“[Continuing from the prologue] The economic explosion following the Civil War created an unprecedented nation-wide market for beef. Previously worthless cattle running wild throughout Texas were gathered into herds and driven north to the railheads in Kansas. Fortunes were made as cowtowns sprang up on the Prairies, wide-open centers of commerce and vice, their streets choked with heavily-armed young men fresh from the cattle drives.

In those days the correct term for a cowhand was ‘drover’. ‘Cowboy’, like ‘cowpoke’, was originally an insult implying deviant sexuality and was rarely used. But these invading drovers were a wild breed for soon shootings and wholesale drunken riots became so frequent that ordinary citizens literally could not walk down the street. In fact at their height the cowtowns had higher murder rates than modern New York or Los Angeles and there was no law but that of the gun.”

A dashing figure in a Prince Albert coat appears, long locks tumbling down his shoulders, twin Navy Colts thrust into a red sash at his waist, a tin star on his chest. Next we see him in action, downing 3 barroom opponents at once, pistols FLASHING around the room like a strobe light:

V.O. NARRATION
“Straight-up at 75 yards or eye-to-eye at point-blank range, the greatest gunman of all time was an Illinois abolitionist farm boy named James Butler Hickok, better known as Wild Bill, the Prince of Pistoleers. But Wild Bill worked his trade on the side of justice and as marshal of cowtowns like Hays City and Abilene he became a legend, the one man who stood between law and chaos.”

Now Hickock sits facing us, playing poker as a shabbily-looking figure with a gun steals up behind him and FIRES.....
“Wild Bill’s fame spread nation-wide but his end came quietly in the spring of ’76 when a strange cross-eyed little drifter put a bullet through the back of his head, apparently for no other reason than he wanted to kill a celebrity.”

Now a group of cowhands carouse a streetcorner, raising hell as 2 mustachiod young LAWMen walk up, trying to quiet them down.

“In Dodge City meanwhile, Wyatt Earp and Bat Masterson were Becoming known as fast-guns. But Their fame had nothing to do with Shooting.”

Seeing it’s hopeless, the lawmen whip out their pistols and start clubbing the drover’s making them stagger and grimace, holding their heads….

“Earp and Masterson operated more like modern policemen, using teamwork and persuasion to keep order. Still, sometimes things got out of hand.”

An ARMED DROVER creeps up behind the lawmen, about to fire….

“But Wyatt had a guardian angel.”

A REED-THIN FIGURE with a sawed-off shotgun steps from the shadows behind the drover and FIRES. The huge blast WHITES-OUT the screen for an instant, making the drover seem to disappear. The lawmen spin around. The thin man breaks the shotgun open then calmly holds out his wrists to be cuffed. Earp looks at him in shock, mouthing the word “thanks”.

“John Henry ‘Doc’ Holliday was the son of an aristocratic, highly cultured southern family. Trained in Philadelphia, he had Embarked on a career as a society Dentist when he contracted Tuberculosis. Advised to practice In the west where it was thought The climate and clean air would Prolong his life, Doc soon Realized it was all only a matter Of time and gave up dentistry to Become a professional gambler and Gunman…”
The scene shifts to an elegant Victorian home: a stern Jewish patriarch orders his darkly beautiful daughter upstairs as her weeping mother looks on. The girl huffs up the stairs followed by her little white dog. Next, the girl and dog are seen escaping through a window to the street below and a waiting cab.

V.O. NARRATION
“Others headed east. Bent on becoming an actress. Josephine Marcus defied her wealthy and very proper San Francisco Jewish family to run away with a traveling theatrical company, braving the perils of the Frontier on her own. Dangerous as this might seem, it was another age and women were so rare, their presence so cherished that they could travel virtually anywhere in the west in perfect safety.”

Now we see horsemen silhouetted against the night sky, a hand knocking on a door, figures conferring in darkness, then more riders, moving west in restless haste toward the rising sun….

V.O. NARRATION
“At about this time the Texas Rangers, having eliminated the Commanche threat, turned their attention to the outlaw gangs marauding along the Rio Grande, cleaning up the border strip in 4 years of hard riding. Those they could not indict or convict the Rangers put down in their Black Book, letting it be known that they could either leave Texas or face summary execution. This resulted in the mass migration of the absolute dregs of the Texas underworld to the most dangerous, uncivilized part of the entire country, the southeast corner of the Arizona Territory.”

A jagged, moonlit landscape, a lone prospector and his burro moving along a ridge, a pick digging into a rocky ledge, an ore car emerging from a mine shaft, finally a hilltop cluster of tents becoming the skeletal wood-frame beginnings of a town….

V.O. NARRATION
“Harsh and inhospitable, savaged in turn by the Apache and Mexican bandits, this had always been an accursed place, a virtual hell on earth where it was thought life itself could never prosper, much V.O. NARRATION (cont.)
less civilization. Then in 1879, a prospector named Ed Schiefflin set off alone into the Dragoon Mountains. Friends told him he was crazy, that the only thing he’d find in this Godforsaken Place would be his tombstone. Instead he found silver, lots of it, and overnight the town of Tombstone sprang up. Mining Taking out millions in ore. Land Value shot sky-high and Speculators and gamblers and Opportunists of all nations Scrambled in by the thousands to Make Tombstone queen of the Boomtowns, so rich that the Latest Paris fashions, hard to Find even in the biggest cities, Were sold there by the wagonload From the makeshift storefronts.”

An engraving of a stagecoach holdup, herds of cattle moving north, a newspaper story of a massacre in Mexico, congressmen railing at each other, shaking their fists….

V.O. NARRATION
“Meanwhile, the exile Texans had banded together to form the nucleus of an organized gang. Seizing control of the Surrounding countryside they Robbed stagecoaches at will while The big absentee business Interests employed them as tax Collectors and strongarm men. But The backbone of their trade Remained border rustling, Periodic raids into Mexico to Steal cattle while engaging in What was described as a virtual Orgy of murder and violence. The Raids became so frequent and so Bloody that the Mexican Government formally protested to U.S. President Chester A. Arthur, Prompting heated debate in Congress. General Sherman Declared that the only possible Way of bringing order was to send In the army but in the wake of Civil War Reconstruction federal Intervention in civilian affairs Was politically impossible.” Pounding hooves, flowing manes, a pack of night-riding HORSEMEN kicking hell-for-leather across the desert moonscape….

V.O. NARRATION
“With only some 100 members, the gang was an elite body of gunmen, known by the red silk sashes they wore around their waists.
Fiercely proud of their Terrifying reputation and Answerable to no one, they were a Law unto themselves, finally Emerging as one of the earliest Examples in American history of Full-scale organized crime.”

END MAIN TITLE as the screen fades to an ominous black and….

V.O. NARRATION
“They called themselves the Cowboys.”

EXT – SONORA DESERT/CANYON ENTRANCE – DAY

Burning daylight, hard reality. A squad of uniformed MEXICAN RURALES rides through the Sonora desert, sabres glinting in the sun. Approaching the mouth of a rocky canyon their hard-bitten CAPTAIN signals them to stop, leaning down to study a jumble of hoofprints on the ground. He turns to the anxiouslooking YOUNG RURALE on his right, speaking in Spanish via subtitle:

CAPTAIN
It’s them, only an hour north.

YOUNG RURALE
But this is the border.

CAPTAIN
You saw what those animals did at
That rancho. You think a border
Is going to stop me? No, I’m Going to see them suffer for what They did! I swear it on my soul!

The Captain spurs his horse and they ride on at a gallop, plunging into the canyon….

DELETED

EXT – SKELETON CANYON – NIGHT

The full moon throws fantastic shadows across the high walls of the canyon as the Rurales ride through. At the bend the Captain halts them. The young one starts to speak but the Captain shushes him, peering into the darkness. A few beats then:

CAPTAIN
Turn around! Fast! Now!
But suddenly GUNFIRE erupts from the shadows all around them, blasting them from the saddle, each powder flash lighting up the canyon for an instant, freezing each victim in the moment of his death. Then, just as abruptly the firing stops, leaving only the Captain, the young Rurale, and a 3rd Rurale alive. Dazed and bloody, they struggle to their feet as 6 armed FIGURES emerge from the shadows, walking into the moonlight toward them. With broad-brim hats swept up in front, silk scarves and red sashes, high boots and silver-studded gunleather, they look like 17th century pirates. These are the Cowboys: OLD MAN CLANTON, the ageless, white-bearded leader; CURLY BILL BROCIUS, 2nd-in-command, smiling, bull-necked; IKE and BILLY CLANTON, the old man’s sons; FLORENTINO, a Mexican half-breed; and JOHNNY RINGO, dark, Byronic, with an air of something very strange. The Old Man nods to Florentino:

OLD MAN CLANTON
Tell ‘em to get on their knees.

Florentino does so in Spanish. The others kneel but the Captain remains on his feet, steely-eyed, defiant.

FLORENTINO
He will not kneel. He is proud.

CURLY BILL
So how’d you like our little Carry-on over at that rancho? Kinda hit the spot didn’t it?

CAPTAIN
Animals! Butchers!

OLD MAN CLANTON
Hey, somebody get that stick on His knees.

Curly Bill casually FIRES his shotgun into the Captain’s legs, dropping him into a splayed lotus position. Curly Bill knods.

CURLY BILL
Gracias.

OLD MAN CLANTON
They call me Old Man Clanton. I’m What you might call the founder Of the feast. Now maybe you ain’t Heard, but we skylark through Your dingy little country just About any time we damn well Please and big-hat, crummy - Lookin’ free-holes stumblin’ Around in the dark ain’t allowed. Messican po-lice, huh? Think You’re bad medicine, don’t you? Hell, I’ve let stronger stuff run Down my leg. So next time we come Better step aside. Get in our Hair again, we’ll saw your prods Off with butter knives and stuff ‘em in your gobs. Ain’t kiddin’ neither. You been told. Now git.
The others rise and dash away but Curly Bill stops the Captain:

    CURLY BILL
    Hold up, jefe. Got a joke I wanna Tell you.

The Captain speaks grimly in Spanish. Florentino smiles.

    FLORENTINO
    He say he know you killing him.
    CURLY BILL
    Now how’d he figure that out?
    FLORENTINO
    He say he is no’ afraid, someone
    Will revenge for him. A sick Horse.
    CURLY BILL
    A sick horse? What the hell…

Scattered chuckles from the others but we notice Ringo frown and draw his pistol as the Captain repeats the words.

    FLORENTINO
    Something, I don’t know, he talk
    Fancy, you know, like a priest.
    Is like, “a sick horse who sits---”
    RINGO
    That’s not what he said, you
    Ignorant wretch. Your spanish is Worse than your English. Come on,
    Let’s get it over with.

Ringo takes aim. The Captain sneers, suddenly in English:

    RURALE CAPTAIN
    You go to hell!
    RINGO
    You first.

EXT – ARIZONA DESERT – DAWN

GUNSHOTS as the Cowboys fire their pistols and shout, running their stolen herd out of a draw into a clearing where the McLaury brothers wait: FRANK, older, edgy; and TOM, younger, easy-going.

    TOM
    Looks like you had a party!
    CURLY BILL
    Oh, we had a big time!
The Old Man, Curly Bill, and Ringo rein up and look out at the sun rising magnificently from the desert floor. The Old man stretches his legs in the stirrups, taking out a whiskey flask.

OLD MAN CLANTON
Ain’t that sweet? That’s why I Stay out here. Thank you, God.

He raises the flask and drinks. Curly Bill turns to Ringo:

 CURLY BILL
What’d the Mexican mean, a sick
Horse’s gonna get us? Didn’t make No sense.

 RINGO
He was quoting the bible,
Revelations: “Behold a pale horse
And the one that sat on him was Death and Hell followed with him.”

 CURLY BILL
Well now that’s a little more Like it.

EXT – TRAIN STATION PLATFORM/TELEGRAPH OFFICE – DAY

A BLACK HORSE, a fabulous thoroughbred stallion, rears and neighs on an open flat-car where it’s tethered with 4 near-identical geldings. A small boy tries to pet it as a strong-featured, fair-haired MAN appears, quieting the horse. Tall and slim in a black frock coat and black flat-brim hat, he moves with assurance and grace, a man in control. This is WYATT EARP.

DAKE
“Dear Governor Gosper—in re yours directing action against Cowboys, stop. Beg to inform have Twice sent deputies to serve
Warrants on Cowboy suspects,
Stop. Nothing to show for it but 2 dead deputies, stop. Short of deputizing U.S. Army am at loss—

DEPUTY
(points at Wyatt)
The tall man over there, Marshal.
I’m not sure but I think that’s Wyatt Earp.

DAKE
Wyatt Earp? Oh, right, Dodge City.

Back down the platform Wyatt strokes the stallion gently, looking up as Dake approaches.

DAKE
Mr. Earp? My name’s Dake, Crawley Dake. I’m the U.S. Marshal for—
WYATT
Forget it.

DAKE
Excuse me?

WYATT
I said forget it, answer’s no, I
Don’t want the job and that’s Final. I’m going to Tombstone and Nothin’ short of dyin’ s gonn
Stop me. Good day.

DAKE
But wait, you don’t understand—

WYATT
No Marshal, you don’t understand.
I’m through with lawing, I’m Through with the whole
Proposition. Forever. I did my Duty, now I’d like to get on with My life. That is if you don’t Mind. Jesus. Good day now.

DAKE
I see, off to strike it rich,
Huh. All right, fine, wish you
Luck. Tell you this though, never
Was a rich man yet didn’t wind up
With a guilty conscience.

WYATT
Already got a guilty conscience,
Might as well have the money too.

Dake retreats. Wyatt turns back to his horse testily. Suddenly:

O.S. VOICE
Boy, I’d know that sour face Anywhere.

Wyatt turns. His brothers stand behind him, smiling. Though VIRGIL is a little older and heavier.
MORGAN a little younger and slimmer, they’re otherwise identical to Wyatt, right down to their style of dress. Wyatt breaks into a grin, hugging them both, his cool replaced with an almost boyish enthusiasm.

MORGAN
Well how do we look?

WYATT
Hey! Virgil! My God! Morgan! Hey,
Boy! You look great! Both of you!

Virgil’s blonde wife ALLIE, small, fierce, and Irish, steps up with Morgan’s fair, cameo-lovely young LOUISA in tow.
VIRGIL
Wyatt, you remember Allie

ALLIE
Good God, well he better.

WYATT
(hugs her, laughing)
Allie-girl... And Louisa! You’re
So lovely. I’m at your feet,
Darlin’. Just at your feet.
(turns to Morgan)
Guess it’s only right. Ma always Said you were the prettiest.

VIRGIL
But she doted on the frowner

Wyatt’s handsome blonde wife MATTIE enters from the street:

MATTIE
Wyatt, I couldn’t find a single Store that had laudanum any—

WYATT
Mattie, they’re here! Folks this
Is Celia Ann but you can call her
Mattie. Or even Mrs. Earp if you Prefer.

VIRGIL
Mrs. Earp? Land O’ love, it finally happened! Mattie it’s a Pleasure!

All exchange greetings and hugs. Wyatt positively beams:

WYATT
Boy, I sure been dreamin’ about
This. God! Since forever! Wait!

He turns them toward the stationhouse window, arranging them in a group and pointing to their reflection.

WYATT
There, look at that! God
Almighty

Wyatt smiles, shaking his head. Morgan’s starts to speak, but:

WYATT
Don’t talk, just...yeah.

They stand silently, studying themselves, together as a family. Wyatt still shaking his head happily, drinking it in. Finally:

WYATT
All right, now let’s go make our fortune.
EXT – WAGON – MAGIC HOUR

A large woman, Wyatt’s black horses tied to the rear, crosses the majestic, forbidding Arizona desert with its red volcanic rocks and the giant saguaro cactus dotting the landscape so mysteriously, like huge, spiny hieroglyphics….

EXT – CAMP BY RIVER – NIGHT

A camp by the river under a clear night sky dripping with stars. After dinner. The women, Virgil, and Morgan sit by the fire. Morgan petting his dog, a sweet little foxhound. Louisa sits behind him, twirling his silky blonde hair, turning to Mattie:

LOUISA
Don’t you love their hair? They
All have the same hair.

Just then Wyatt appears on his stallion, galloping across the moonlit plain toward them, sitting his horse like a centaur. It’s clear he’s a magnificent horseman. Virgil smiles:

VIRGIL
Look at him go, will ya? I tell
You, that’s the real Wyatt, born
In the saddle.

MATTIE
Oh, he can go all right.

ALLIE
Can he then?

MATTIE
Rather ride than eat.

The women cackle lasciviously. Virgil groans at Allie:

VIRGIL
Try to be a lady, will you?

Wyatt rides up and dismounts, unsaddling the horse.

MORGAN
Give him some good exercise? Sure
Some stud. Some string in fact.
What’re you gonna do, race ‘em?

WYATT
Hope so. Clean up with this boy.

Louisa turns to Mattie, fishing in her bag:

LOUISA
Mattie hon’, did you say you
Needed some laudanum? I have a Bottle right here. Just be Careful. It’s full of hop.

MATTIE
You’re a lifesaver! Don’t worry,
I just get headaches sometimes.

As Wyatt leads the horse away the women get up. Allie and Louisa going to the river with dishes, Mattie crossing to the wagon. Virgil and Morgan watch her appreciatively:

VIRGIL
Mighty fine. Wonder where he Found her. Same place we found
Ours probably

At the other end of camp Mattie climbs into the wagon and lies down. Wyatt appears and starts to stroke her head.

WYATT
Come up to the fire, honey.

MATTIE
I think I’ll just lie down awhile

A coyote starts HOWLING from the far darkness. Mattie shudders:

MATTIE
Long as I live I’ll never Get used to that sound.

WYATT
They’re just lonely is all. Hell,
I howl myself sometimes.

MATTIE
You get lonely?

She seems genuinely surprised. Wyatt looks genuinely confused. Over at the fire, Morgan hugs and mashes Louisa playfully.

MORGAN
Come up, Lou. Come up here, girl.

LOUISA Stop…

She fights loose. Wyatt walks up, sits, shaking his gold watch.

WYATT
Look at that. Busted. Brand new Money Ward, too. 33 years old
And I don’t even have a decent
Watch. ‘Bout time I started
Lookin’ out for myself.

VIRGIL
Well here we are a family again.
Been so long plain forgot how Good it feels. Want to thank you
For that, Wyatt. All your doin’.

WYATT
We’re gonna do it, boys. Gonna Get ours. Feel it in my bones.
All we have to do is keep our Eyes on that brass ring.

MORGAN
(lies back)
Boy, look at all those stars. Bet
You can see every star there is.
Practical touch ‘em. Kinda makes
You think, you know? I mean you
Look up and you think God made
All that but he still remembered
To make a little speck like me.
Kinda flattering really. Hey,
Wyatt, you believe in God? No,
Come on, really, do you?

WYATT
Maybe, yeah. Hell, I don’t know.

MORGAN
Well what do you think happens
When you die?

WYATT
Got me. Somethin’. Nothin’. I
Don’t know.

MORGAN
I read this book, book on Spiritualism…

VIRGIL
Oh, God, here he goes…

MORGAN
…said a lot of people, when they’re dyin’, they see this light, like in a tunnel. They say it’s the light leading you to heaven.

WYATT
Really? What about hell? They got
A sign or what?

MORGAN
Hey, Wyatt, God damn it, I’m serious!
WYATT
Well that’s your problem. Hey
Virge, see anything of Doc while
You were in Prescott?

VIRGIL
Hit a streak when we left. Him
And Kate.

ALLIE
(from the stream)
Uh, that woman.

WYATT
I miss Doc. I miss that ol’ rip.

VIRGIL
I don’t

ALLIE
Neither do I.

WYATT
He makes me laugh.

INT – PRESCOTT SALOON – NIGHT

A handsomely appointed saloon. At a corner table, the pot is so rich 2 players have folded leaving ED BAILEY, a big, sullen, tough-looking gambler, facing gaunt, elegant DOC HOLLIDAY. Full of southern refinement and languid, almost feline grace. Doc has such unerring style and aplomb that he makes his constant tubercular coughing sound as if he’s merely clearing his throat. Bailey leans forward, seething with impatience:

BAILEY
I said that’s 500 to you,
Holliday. In or out?

DOC
500? Sly boots, must be a peach of a hand.

KATE HORONY, Doc’s voluptuous Hungarian consort enters, refilling his engraved silver stirrup cup.
She has a faint accent:

KATE
Here, Doc.

DOC
Bless you, darling
(puts arm around her)
Darling! Are you mad? You’re not Wearing a bustle. How lewd!

BAILEY
Oh, for Christ’s sake!
DOC
Ed Bailey, you look like you’re
Just ready to burst. Well call me
A fool but I guess I’ll just have To call. Cover your ears, darling.

Doc covers the bet and shows his hand. Bailey pounds the table.

BAILEY
God damn son of a…

DOC
Isn’t that a daisy?

BAILEY
Just pick up your money and go.
Sick of listening to you simper.

DOC
Now Ed, are we cross?

Doc leans forward, revealing an ivory gun-butt under his coat.

BAILEY
Skinny lunger, your guns don’t Impress me. Wasn’t for those guns
You’d be nothin’.

DOC
Why Ed, what an ugly thing to Say! Does this mean you’re not my Friend anymore? You know, Ed, if I thought you weren’t my friend I
Don’t think I could bear it.

Now a Cheshire cat smile we will soon come to know very well steals over Doc’s face as he takes out his nickel-plated .38 Colt Lightning and .45 Peacemaker and lays them on the table.

DOC
There, now we can be friends
Again. But remember, Ed,
Friendship is trust—so please
Don’t hurt me.

Doc bats his eyelashes. Bailey jumps up, boiling. A long, sweaty moment, then Bailey LUNGEs. Doc spring up, grabbing him by the hair and jabbing his fist into Bailey’s armpit. Bailey screams and doubles over. Doc gives him two more blows, so light they hardly seem capable of the effect they’re having. But as he turns to give him another we suddenly SEE that there’s a KNIFE in Doc’s hand. The bartender reaches for the shotgun under the bar. Kate pulls a Derringer from her muff and puts it to his ear.

KATE
Touch that gun, I burn you down!

He backs off. Kate covers the room. Bailey drops to his knees.
BAILEY
Oh, my God…

DOC
Does it hurt? A lot? Good.

Eyes gleaming cruelly, Doc blows his cigarette smoke into Bailey’s face. Bailey sinks to the floor in a fetal position. Kate gathers up the pot as Doc retrieves his guns, looking around the room. Then both back up to the door.

DOC
Well, good evening then.

They exit. The others look down at the groaning Bailey lying in a pool of his own blood. A GAMBLER shakes his head:

1ST GAMBLER
Judas…

EXT – STREET OUTSIDE – NIGHT

Doc and Kate stride quickly down the board sidewalk to the hotel.

DOC
I calculate that’s the end of
This town. And let’s don’t bother
About the luggage, darling.

KATE
I been having the boy at the Hotel pack us up every night
Since your streak started

Kate points to 2 horses saddled and packed outside the hotel.

DOC
My sweet clever Magyar, so that’s
Why you’re not wearing a bustle.

Doc gives Kate a peck on the cheek as they mount and ride off…

EXT – TOMBSTONE OUTSKIRTS/COTTAGES – DAY

A small cottage at the edge of town. As the Earps drive up we SEE a sobbing woman sitting splay-legged in the middle of the street while her husband tries to comfort her. 3 small children stand alongside them, watching in stunned silence as Cowboys FRANK STILLWELL, cocky, arrogant, and PETE SPENCE, lean, dark, heave their furniture and belongings out of the cottage into the street while snarling things like, “shut up…deadbeats…move it!” The Earps stop, staring at this scene in shock, Allie looking ready to fight. Virgil restrains her, Stillwell looks up:

STILLWELL
What’re you lookin’ at?

Virgil looks at Wyatt who shakes his head. They drive on as….
Unlike the dreary, weather-beaten western towns in movies, Tombstone is new and colorful, part town, part mining camp, a wild mixture of brightly painted wooden storefronts and half-finished stone buildings rimmed by clusters of tents and shanties, all perched atop a hill with a magnificent view of the desert and the purple Dragoon mountains beyond. We HEAR the vibrant din of hammers and saws, player pianos, hurdy-gurdy, clip-clopping horses’ hooves, and pealing laughter as the Earps drive up Allen Street, the main drag, lined with saloon after saloon, sidewalks bustling with drovers, miners, Chinamen, and sullen gun-toting hard-cases. They pull up in front of the Grand Hotel and step down. JOHNNY BEHAN, handsome, well-dressed, wearing an ornate crescent-shaped gold sheriff’s badge and a ready smile walks up and shakes hands:

BEHAN
Newcomers, eh? Names John Behan, I’m Cochise County Sheriff. Just hit town?

WYATT
Just this minute. I’m Wyatt Earp, These’re my brothers—

BEHAN
Wyatt Earp…Dodge City, right?

WYATT
Gave all that up. Going into business.

BEHAN
Well I’m the man to see. Besides Sheriff I’m also tax collector, Captain of the Fire Brigade, and Chairman of the Non-partisan Anti-Chinese league. A man of many Parts. Got a place to stay yet? I Also sit on the Townlot Commission. Got a couple of Lovely cottages coming up for Rent. Here, let me show you…

EXT – TOMBSTONE OUTSKIRTS/COTTAGE – DAY

The Earps and Behan stand on the porch of the very same cottage we saw the Cowboys evict the family from.

BEHAN
The one next door and the one Across the street are vacant too. Same rent and I’ll throw in a Good cleaning. Believe me, you Won’t find a better deal within Town limits.

Wyatt looks enquiringly at his brothers. They shrug. He’s calling the shots. Wyatt shrugs back. Finally:

WYATT
Guess we’ll take all three.
EXT – O.K. CORRAL/ALLEN ST. – DAY

A large stable and corral backing up into a vacant lot. Wyatt’s big horses feed in their stalls while Wyatt faces the stableboy:

WYATT
…and easy on the grain, I don’t want ’em too fidgety.

Morgan and Virgil enter with FRED WHITE, the jovial old town marshal. Shaking hands, all 4 go up Allen, taking in the town.

MORGAN
Wyatt, meet Fred White, he’s town marshal.

WYATT
Lotta law around here. Just met the Sheriff.

WHITE
Who, Behan? He ain’t no law, only Real law here’s the Cowboys.

VIRGIL
The Cowboys, yeah. I heard of ’em.

WHITE
Nobody does nothin’ without ’em. They’re it. Hell, even the Apache’re scared of ’em. There’s A couple right there: Sherman McMasters and Pony Deal. Can Always spot a Cowboy, they all Wear those red sashes.

White points to SHERMAN MCMASTERS and PONY DEAL, a half-breed, standing over by the hotel, joking in sign language.

VIRGIL
Look pretty rough.

WYATT
Just like any other hard cases. Gotta know how to handle ’em.

WHITE
Well I’m no Wild Bill. Way I Handle ’em’s just mainly live and Let live. That usually answers But even so, gets kinda spooky Sometimes. Still somebody’s gotta Do it, I mean how the hell else You gonna walk down the street?

VIRGIL
Doesn’t anybody raise a stink?
The hell kinda town is this?

WHITE
Boohtown. Wide open. People
Grabbin’ with both hands ain’t
Got time for any law and order.
In fact the less law the more Opportunities there are for Makin’ money. Plain fact is the Cowboys’re good for business.

WYATT
What about all these saloons?

WHITE
Ah, now that’s the real mother-
Lode in Tombstone. Up and down
Allen Street, full-blast 24 hours
A day, liquor, hostesses,
Gamblin’, makin’ money hand over Fist. All except the Oriental. On Account of the element. Have a Man for breakfast in there most Days. Regular slaughter house.
High-rollers won’t go near it.
Too bad, nice place.

Wyatt nods, suddenly very interested as they walk on and….

EXT – ORIENTAL SALOON – DAY

We feel the sensual delight of going from hot sun into cool dark as Wyatt enters, going up to the ornate mahogany bar. Though a large, handsome saloon complete with gaming tables, it has only a few patrons on hand. “The Lilly and the Rose” is on the player piano as bartender MILT JOYCE appears:

JOYCE
What can I get you?

WYATT
Let me have one of those cigars.
(lights up, looks around)
Kinda nice in here. You run it?

JOYCE
Milt Joyce, owner-operator.

WYATT
Well, excuse me for askin’, Milt,
But isn’t it kinda dead in here?

Joyce points to the faro table in the corner where JOHNNY TYLER, an unshaven plug-ugly with a big D.A. Colt .45 carried ostentatiously in a shoulder holster, deals to a couple of scruffy-looking drifters.

JOYCE
You see that bird at the faro
Table? That’s Johnny Tyler. He
Barged in here one day, said he
Was takin’ over the game, started
Slappin’ customer, wavin’ his Gun around, scarin’ off all the High-class play. Only trade comes
In here now’s just bummers and Drovers, just the dregs.

WYATT
Why don’t you get rid of him and Get yourself straight dealer?

JOYCE
Well sure, neighbor, easy to say.

INT – FARO TABLE – DAY

As Wyatt walks up Tyler starts snarling at one of the players:

TYLER
You back that Queen again, you
Son of a bitch, I’ll blow you
Right out of that chair!
(looks up, sees Wyatt)
Somethin’ on your mind?

WYATT
Just wanted to let you know
You’re sitting in my chair.

TYLER
That a fact?

WYATT
Yeah. It’s a fact.

Tyler looks Wyatt over, noting he is unarmed. He stands, sneering:

TYLER
For a man that don’t go heeled
You run your mouth kinda reckless.

WYATT
Don’t need to go heeled to get
The bulge on a dub like you.

TYLER
That a fact?

WYATT
Yeah. It’s a fact.

TYLER
Well I’m real scared.
Wyatt steps forward suddenly, eyes cold and hard like a shark. Suddenly realizing he’s in way over his head. Tyler shrinks back reflexively, his hand moving toward his gun. The other players scatter. Wyatt nods, his voice calm and steady:

Wyatt

Damn right you’re scared. I can See it in your eyes.

Wyatt abruptly SLAPS his face, making his teeth clack together.

Wyatt

I’m getting tired of your gas.
Jerk that pistol and go to work.

Tyler goes pale, all pretense of courage gone. Wyatt slaps him again.

Wyatt

I said throw down, boy.

Another slap. Tyler stays frozen, blood dripping down his chin.

Wyatt

You gonna do something or just Stand there and bleed?

Tyler’s done. Wyatt plucks his gun away, handing it to Joyce.

Wyatt

No, I didn’t think so. Here,
Milt. Keepsake, hang it over the Bar. All right, youngsters. Out
You go…

Wyatt takes Tyler by the ear, dragging him across the room like an unruly child. At the door he gives the ear a twist.

Wyatt

And don’t come back. Ever.

Tyler winces. Wyatt shoves him out into the street then turns to Joyce casually:

Wyatt

See how easy that was?

EXT – CORNER OF ALLEN & 5TH STREET (STAGECOACH) – DAY

Later. Wyatt walks up to his brothers at the corner.
WYATT
Well we’re off and running. Just Acquired us a quarter-interest in The game at the Oriental.

VIRGIL
Acquired?

WYATT
So to speak.

Down the block, unseen by the Earps, a wild-eyed Tyler is advancing on them with a sawed-off shotgun.
He is within 20 feet when suddenly:

O.S. VOICE
Why Johnny Tyler, you madcap,
Where are you going with that Shotgun?

Tyler spins around to see Doc standing in a doorway, smiling. Tyler freezes.

TYLER
Doc. I didn’t know you were in town.

Wyatt spots Doc and walks up, brothers in tow. Though they don’t so much as shake hands, we sense a strong bond between the 2 men.

WYATT
Doc! How the hell are you?

DOC
Perfect, Wyatt. Simply perfect.

TYLER
Wyatt? Wyatt Earp?

MORGAN
Going into business for Ourselves. Wyatt just got us a Faro game.

DOC
Since when is faro a business?

WYATT
Didn’t you always say gambling’s
An honest trade?

DOC
I said poker’s an honest trade.
Only suckers buck the tiger. The Odds are all with the house.

WYATT
Depends how you look at it. I
Mean it’s not like anybody’s
Holding a gun to their heads.

DOC

That’s what I love about Wyatt. He can talk himself into anything.

They laugh. Frozen there. Tyler begins to tremble. Finally:

DOC

Oh sorry, Johnny, I forgot all About you. You can go now. Just Leave the shotgun.

TYLER

Thank you.

Tyler scuttles off as Behan approaches affably. Doc sniffs.

WYATT

Sheriff Behan, Doc Holliday.

DOC

Forgive me if I don’t shake hands.

BEHAN

So how’s Tombstone treating you?

WYATT

Fine, fine. But I was thinkin’, You know what this town really Needs is a race track.

BEHAN

Actually, you know, that’s not a Bad idea, send a signal we’re Growing up.

DOC

Little ahead of yourselves, Aren’t you? This is just a mining Camp.

BEHAN

See how everyone dresses? Awfully Toney for a mining camp. No, the Die’s cast, we’re growing, be as Big as San Francisco in a few Years. And just as sophisticated.

DOC

I can hardly wait.

As if on cue, a bullet WHIZZES past Behan’s head. Everyone ducks. More GUNFIRE as a man holding a bloody hand to his throat reels out the door of the nearby Crystal Palace, his gun firing wildly like a sputtering engine before he pitches face first onto the sidewalk, dead. Immediately 2 more men appear: a staggering DRUNK with a bullet hole in his shoulder; and TURKEY CREEK JACK JOHNSON, a leathery plainsman with his gun at the ready. A crowd forms as the drunk raises his pistol, bellowing.

\[
\text{DRUNK} \\
\text{You son of a bitch!}
\]

\[
\text{JOHNSON} \\
\text{That’s right, keep comin’, keep comin’…}
\]

\[
\text{DOC} \\
\text{(turns to Behan)} \\
\text{Very cosmopolitan.}
\]

\[
\text{WYATT} \\
\text{I know him. That’s Creek Johnson.}
\]

Suddenly a 3\textsuperscript{rd} man, TEXAS JACK VERMILLION, long-haired, hawk-nosed, appears, pistol at the ready, keeping bystanders at bay.

\[
\text{VERMILLION} \\
\text{Easy, gents. Private affair…} \\
\text{(spots Wyatt)} \\ \text{Wyatt! Doc! Hey!}
\]

\[
\text{WYATT} \\ \text{Jack…}
\]

\[
\text{DRUNK} \\
\text{You bastard!}
\]

The drunk now has raised his gun to where it’s almost level and:

\[
\text{JOHNSON} \\
\text{Yeah, good. Right about there.}
\]

Johnson FIRES. The drunk drops in a heap. Johnson spots Wyatt:

\[
\text{JOHNSON} \\
\text{Hello, Wyatt! Hiya Doc!}
\]

\[
\text{WYATT} \\
\text{What was that all about?}
\]

\[
\text{VERMILLION} \\
\text{Drunks. Crawfished a bet, called Him a liar. I saw the whole thing.}
\]

\[
\text{DOC} \\
\text{(turns to Behan)} \\
\text{Sheriff, may I present a pair of Fellow sophisticates, Turkey Creek Jack Johnson and Texas Jack Vermillion? Watch your ear, Creek.}
\]

Doc points to his bloody ear. Johnson touches it, sees the blood, gives a silent start. Just then White arrives, looking weary, facing Johnson and Vermillion.
WHITE
‘Fraid I’ll have to have those guns.

JOHNSON
Fair fight. We were legal.

WHITE
Sorry, boys. Gotta take you
Before Judge Spicer.

VERMILLION
Well law and order every time,
That’s us.

They hand over their guns while Virgil looks at the 2 dead men lying in the street, shaking his head:

VIRGIL
What kinda town is this?

VERMILLION
Nice scenery.

They look. A stagecoach stops in the street. JOSEPHINE MARCUS looks out the window, her little white dog under her chin. She and Wyatt spot each other instantly, both impressed.

BEHAN
That must be the theatrical Troupe. There’s a show tonight at Schieffelin Hall.

JOHNSON
Hey, Wyatt, you goin’ to the Show? Maybe we’ll see you there.
(turns to White)
Won’t we.

WHITE
Yeah, probably.

White leads them off to jail. Wyatt and Josephine hold each other’s gaze as the coach drives on. Doc smiles:

DOC
Well, an enchanted moment

EXT – GRAND HOTEL (STAGECOACH) – DAY

Pony Deal and McMasters watch as the actors exit the coach for the hotel. Josephine turns to the pretty 1st actress:

JOSEPHINE
Interesting little scene. I Wonder who that tall man was.
I^{ST} ACTRESS
Typical frontier type. Long and Lean. And those gray eyes. Like a Wild hawk. You see quite a few of His type out here.

JOSEPHINE
Oh, I want one.

INT – LOBBY, GRAND HOTEL – DAY

The actors enter, going to the desk while Josephine looks for a place to sit. A fat, well-dressed easterner with a newspaper sits nearby, ignoring her. Seeing this from outside, McMasters instantly barges into the lobby, hoists the easterner out of his chair, and hurls him bodily out into the street. Josephine nods her surprised thanks. McMasters tips his hat shyly, exits as the I^{ST} actress returns with her key. They exchange looks….

INT – SHIEFFELIN HALL – NIGHT

A full house, pandemonium. Curly Bill, Ringo and their Cowboy entourage form a block in the center Rows while BILLY BREKENRIDGE, Behan’s bespectacled, slightly effeminate little Deputy makes his timid way down the aisle, looking for a seat amidst the off fist-fight and yelling match. 2 cocky young Cowboys, BILLY GROUNDS and ZWING HUNT, call out to him:

HUNT
Hey, Sister Boy!

CURLY BILL
Shut up, Zwing. Sit here, Billy.

Curly Bill beckons. Happy as a lark, Breakenridge takes the seat next to him. Up above, the Earps sit in a box, the women thrilled:

ALLIE
This is so much fun! We haven’t Been to a show since years.

MATTIE
I hope they’re good.

STILLWELL
(shouting from below)
Lady, they better be good.

Doc enters, Kate on his arm. The women exchange uneasy nods.

DOC
Kate, you know the Earps.

They sit as White enters with Mayor JOHN CLUM and wife.

WHITE
Wyatt, this is Mayor Clum and his wife.
CLUM
Your reputation precedes you. I wonder –

WYATT
Not a prayer. Nice meetin’ you.

While the orchestra tunes up and the crowd’s excitement rises, White sits next to Wyatt, pointing out the different Cowboys and giving a thumbnail sketch of each as we PAN over them:

WHITE
Well everybody’s here except the Old Man. Got the blade, Billy Grounds, Zwing Hunt, Billy Claiborne, Wes Fuller, Tom and Frank McLaury, Billy Clanton’s The youngest. Wild one. Then the Breeds, Hank Swilling, Pony Deal. Florentino’s Mex-breed. They all Hate Mex, but he hates ‘em Special. Johnny Barnes, Frank Stillwell. That’s Behan’s little Deputy, Billy Breakenridge. Follows the Cowboys around like a Puppy. And the big boys: Curly Bill Brocius, he’s the Old Man’s Rimrod; the one looks like an Actor, that’s Johnny Ringo. Best Gun alive they say. He’s kinda Different. Curly Bill’s the only One he talks to. I mean they’re All rough boys, but Ringo… I Don’t know. I really don’t Music. The house lights dim. The audience hushes. A spotlight hits easel at the end of the stage: “Professor Gillman and His Ballet of Gravity.” Out in the audience, Barnes groans:

BARNES
Professor Gillman? Oh hell, I Seen him in Bisbee. He catches stuff.

The curtain goes up. PROFESSOR GILLMAN, a 3rd rate juggler in white tie, tailcoat, and black tights steps out and starts tossing Indian clubs in the air. The audience starts groaning but the Professor’s rictus-like smile never changes. Having seen enough, Frank Stillwell stands up and shouts:

STILLWELL
Hey profesor! Catch this!

Stillwell raises his pistol and FIRES. An Indian club explodes in the Professor’s hand. Screams and scattered laughter in the audience. The Professor is frozen in utter shock, staring at the bullet graze on his hand and saying out loud:

GILLMAN
They shot me! I don’t believe it!

A chord of music and the curtain drops like stone. Applause....
EXT – BACKSTAGE – NIGHT

The other actors hustle the Professor off the stage, appalled. The 1ST Actress turns to MR. FABIAN, a handsome, slightly raffish classical tragedian.

1ST ACTRESS
My God, they’re shooting at us!
They’re actually shooting at us!
What’ll we do?

FABIAN
Only thing we can do, dear—be Good. In any event, at least we Won’t have to wait for our Notices. Exciting, isn’t it? Now
This is theater!

INT – SHIEFFELIN HALL – NIGHT

More music and another card reads: “Selections From the Bard of Mr. Romulus Fabian, Tragedian in Excelsis.” The curtain rises and Fabian steps out, a purple velvet cloak wrapped resplendently about him like a toga. In the audience, Curly Bill’s mouth drops:

CURLY BILL
Prettiest man I ever saw

Fabian throws open his cloak, revealing his lithe form in doublet and tights. The whores in the gallery hoot and cheer. Fabian bows.

STILLWELL
How come he ain’t wearin’ no pants?

BARNES
(points to whores)
That’s how come.

FABIAN
Ladies and gentlemen, the St Crispin’s Day Speech from Henry V.
To set the Scene, England is Now at war with France.
Everything rests upon the battle
About to begin. Henry, the young
King of England, addresses his men
Thusly: “My cousin Westmorland?
No, my fair cousin—"

Another GUNSHOT and a bullet SPANGS into the column next to Fabian with a shower of plaster. Without missing a beat, Fabian casually flicks a chunk off his shoulder and continues:

FABIAN
“If we are marked to die, we are enow/ To do our country loss; and if to live,/ The fewer me, the greater the share of honour…”
In the audience Barnes holsters his smoke pistol reflectively.

BARNES
He’s got nerve, I’ll say that.
What do you think, Billy?

Starry-eyed, Breakenridge answers without thinking:

BREAKENRIDGE
Oh, he wonderful!

GROUND
Uh-oh, looks like somebody’s in love.

Raw laughter from the others. Breakenridge sinks in his seat.

CURLY BILL
Let him alone.

On stage Fabian is in full cry, giving the local a slice of the ripest ham:

FABIAN
“We few, we happy few, we band of brothers;/ For he today that sheds his blood with me/ Shall be my brother; be he ne’er so vile./
This day shall gentle his Condition;/ And gentlemen in England now a-bed/ Shall think Themselves accurs’d they were no
Here./ And hold their manhood
Cheap whiles any speaks/ That Fought with us upon Saint Crispin’s day!”

Wild applause and cheering. Fabian bows with elaborate modesty.

CURLY BILL
That’s great! That’s our kinda stuff!

The curtain falls. Another card: “Faust – or the Devil’s Bargain” and the orchestra whirs into “Danse Macabre” by Saint-Saens, the rising curtain revealing a wild pained backdrop, all black and red, covered with weird, Beardsley-esque designs and images of death and damnation. A light comes up, revealing an ancient white-bearded scholar sitting alone with his books. Then a hooded Satan dances across the stage, slender and lissome in paned black doublet and breeches and black hose, tempting the old man with images of wealth and youth in the form of a shimmering blonde ballerina. The old man succumbs, signing Satan’s contract. The audience watches in rapt attention, especially the Cowboys:

STILLWELL
He’s gonna some up short on that one.

CURLY BILL
Know what I’d do? I’d take the Deal then crawfish and drill that Of’ Devil in the ass. How ‘bout
You, Johnny? What would you do?
RINGO
I already did it.

Satan makes a flourish. A flash-pad EXPLOSION transforms the old scholar into a young student. The ballerina flits by. The student offers her gold. They dance, swirling about the stage in a mad waltz with Satan hovering behind them, mirroring their every move like a puppet master. Finally, having gotten all his gold, the Ballerina drifts away leaving the young student alone, lost in bitterness as he changes back into the old scholar sitting with his books. Satan appears over him, exultant and triumphant, ready to collect the debt as the curtain falls with a final crashing chord. Thunderous cheering and applause. The curtain rises again and the performers come out for bows, all except Satan.

DOC
Very instructive

WYATT
But who was the Devil?

Suddenly Satan bounds out, removing the hood. It’s Josephine.

MORGAN
It’s that woman from the coach!

WYATT
I’ll be damned…

Josephine spots Wyatt’s box and smiles. Doc raises an eyebrow:

DOC
You may indeed. If you get lucky.

EXT – ALLEN STREET – NIGHT

After the show and theatergoers, including the Earps, stroll homeward arm-in-arm down Allen, all looking up at the clear night sky above. At the Oriental Wyatt stops, turning to Virgil:

WYATT
Comin’ to the Oriental, Virge?

ALLIE
Not tonight! Tonight me and my Old man’re gonna have some fun. Get moving, old man!

She laughs, shoving Virgil down the street. He looks at Wyatt:

VIRGIL
Her maiden name was Sullivan.

WYATT
(kisses Mattie)
Better go with ’em, honey. Here’s Where I leave you.

MATTIE
(grabs his hand)
No, stay. Please stay with me.

WYATT
Honey, I gotta start makin’ money.

MATTIE
Oh, all right.

WYATT
Well I guess I don’t have to go
Right now. I guess I could stay a little while.

MATTIE
No, no, I don’t want to keep you.

WYATT
No really, I can stay a while.

MATTIE
Just go. It’s all right. Wyatt, Really. Work well.

WYATT
All right, well, good night.

Another kiss and he heads for the Oriental with Morgan. Mattie walks on after the others, fishing through her bag for her bottle of laudanum….

DELETED

INT – ORIENTAL – NIGHT

The saloon is packed. TRACK along the bar at floor level past a wild array of high-button shoes, patent leather pumps, and stack-heeled boots with jingling silver spurs. Track again at shoulder level past an equally wild array of slouch hats, pork-pies, derbys, and wide-brim sombreros. Wyatt sits against the wall, dealing faro with Doc at his side, Morgan on lookout while a sweaty overdressed HIGH ROLLER makes bets, gnashing his teeth and drumming his fingers n a fever of impatient greed:

HIGH ROLLER
All right, I’m on fire! Black
Seven, seven stickin’ spades.
Let’s go!

WYATT
I’m your man…
(deals card)
You win again. Well played, sir.
You are on fire.

HIGH ROLLER
Told you. I’m red hot, I’m Blazin’! Now, red seven. Seven Stinkin’ diamonds. Look out! Five Thousand! Let’s go!
WYATT
Awful lot of money.

HIGH ROLLER
Can’t take the heat, get outta
The kitchen.

WYATT
You’re the doctor.
(deals card)
sad news, friend.

HIGH ROLLER
Damn! All right, wait a minute…

The high roller lays a set of deeds out on the table as….

INT – ORIENTAL – NIGHT

A break in the game. Wyatt studies the deeds as Morgan and Doc look on. Kate sits to one side, blowing smoke rings contentedly.

WYATT
So now we’re in the mining
Business. Turning into regular Tycoons. Gonna call this one the Mattie Blaylock. Mattie’ll get a Kick out of that, it’s her maiden Name.

DOC
And what a maiden, pure as the Driven snow, I’m sure.

MORGAN
Hey Doc! Come on now.

WYATT
Just his style, Morg. Doesn’t Mean anything.

DOC
So tell me, Wyatt. I’m curious.
Do you actually consider yourself
A married man? Forsaking all Others?

WYATT
Well yeah. Pretty much. I mean I
Was no angel when we met but People change Doc. I mean sooner
Or later you gotta grow up.

DOC
I see. And what would you do if “she” walked in her right now?
WYATT
“She”?

DOC
You know damn well who I mean. That dusky-hued lady Satan.

WYATT
I don’t know. Probably ignore her.

DOC
Ignore her?

WYATT
I’d ignore her. People can change, Doc.

DOC
I’ll remember you said that.

Doc point. Josephine has just walked in with the other actors.

WYATT
Oh, hell…

She spots Wyatt and starts toward him but he looks away, as if ignoring her. She stops. Behan steps up to her, tipping his hat, very gallant. They move toward the bar. Wyatt turns to Doc.

WYATT Satisfied?

DOC
I stand corrected. Wyatt. You’re an oak.

Josephine and Behan chat at the bar. White nudges Joyce:

WHITE
Since when’d you start servin’ ladies in here?

JOYCE
Actresses. It’s different.

Mr Fabian enters, dramatically gotten-up like Lord Byron. The whole bar bursts into applause. He bows. Breakenridge jumps up from his table, excited:

BREAKENRIDGE
Here, Mr Fabian, have this table.

He seats Fabian near the faro game, gets him some champagne.

FABIAN
Oh, thank you. You’re very kind.
BREKENRIDGE
Mr. Fabian, I’ve got to tell you,
That’s the most wonderful thing I Ever saw. What was that?

FABIAN
Henry’s all right but he’s no
Match for the Melancholy Dane.
(see his confusion)
Hamlet, dear friend, the supreme
Role of any actor worth his salt.

DOC
(leans in, points to Wyatt)
Here’s a man you should meet, Mr.
Fabian. Excellent character study
For you, the real-life actual Melancholy Dane.

FABIAN
Indeed, sir? How so?

DOC
Well he hems, he haws, he talks
Out of both sides of his Mouth—but all on a very high Plane, just like Hamlet.

WYATT
Getting drunk, Doc.

Doc chuckles. Suddenly Curly Bill looms over the faro table with Ringo and a drunken Ike Clanton.

CURLY BILL
Wyatt Earp, huh? I heard of you.

IKE
Listen, Mr. Kansas Law-dog. Law
Don’t go around here. Savvy?

WYATT
I’m retired.

CURLY BILL
Good. That’s real good.

IKE
Yeah, that’s good, Mr. Law-dog.
’cause law don’t go around here.

WYATT
I heard you the first time.

CURLY BILL
Shut up, Ike.
RINGO
(steps up to Doc)
And you must be Doc Holliday.

DOC
That’s the rumor.

RINGO
You retired, too?

DOC
Not me. I’m in my prime.

RINGO
Yeah, you look it.

DOC
And you must be Ringo. Look, Darling, Johnny Ringo. The Deadliest pistoleer since Wild Bill, they say. What do you Think, darling? Should I hate him?

KATE
You don’t even know him.

DOC
Yes, but there’s just something About him. Something around The eyes, I don’t know, reminds me Of… me. No. I’m sure of it, I Hate him.

WYATT
(to Ringo)
He’s drunk.

DOC
In vino veritas.

RINGO
Age quod agis.

DOC
Credat Judaeus Apella.

RINGO
(pats gun)
Ecentus stultorum magister.

DOC
(Cheshire cat smile)
In pace requiescat.

WHITE
(enters, appeasing)
Come on now. We don’t want any Trouble in here. Not in any language.

DOC
Evidently Mr. Ringo’s an educated
Man. Now I really hate him.

Ringo looks at Doc, holding his gaze while suddenly whipping out his .45. Everyone but Doc flinches.
Ringo does a dazzling series of twirls and tricks, his nickel-plated pistol flashing like a blaze of silver fire, finally slapping it back into his holster with a flourish. Cheers and hoots. Doc rolls his eyes, hooks a finger through the handle of his silver cup, then launches into an exact duplication of Ringo’s routine using a cup instead of a gun. The room bursts into laughter. Doc shrugs. Ringo lets a strange little hint of a smile cross his face then exits with the others. White exhales, turns to Wyatt:

WHITE
See what I mean about it getting Spooky?

WYATT
Curly Bill, huh? Who was that Other idiot?

WHITE
Ike Clanton, Old Man’s eldest Son. Know he ain’t got the stuff,
Makes him miserable.

WYATT
Yeah, and dangerous.

Sitting up on the bar to see the show, Josephine turns to Behan:

JOSEPHINE
The man dealing faro. Who is he?

BEHAN
That’s Wyatt Earp. Made quite a
Name for himself as a peace
Officer in Kansas.

JOSEPHINE
A peace officer… Impressive man

BEHAN
Yes, very. And very married.

JOSEPHINE
Oh, so that’s it…

EXT – ALLEN STREET/ORIENTAL – NIGHT

Curly Bill steps out with Ike and Ringo. He looks around.

CURLY BILL
I feel like doin’ somethin’.
Getting woolly.
(looks up)
Hey, Chinky! Come here a minute…

An old Chinaman minces by. Curly Bill dashes after him…

BACK & FORTH INT/EXT – ORIENTAL / ALLEN STREET – NIGHT

Later. Doc is at the piano, drunk as a lord but playing Chopin flawlessly. Kate pours him another drink.

KATE
That’s my lovin’ man. Just can’t Get enough.

DOC Enough? Never.

Now the High-Roller comes reeling up, loud and gratingly drunk.

HIGH ROLLER
Hey, is that “Old Dog Tray”? Sounds like “Old Dog Tray”.

DOC
What?

HIGH ROLLER

DOC
I see, well this happens to be a Nocturne.

HIGH ROLLER
A which?

DOC
You know, Frederic-fucking-Chopin.

Doc plays on. Josephine leaves with Behan. Morgan sighs:

MORGAN
Now that wounds me. Little tin Swain walkin’ off with that black Beauty. I mean I’m a married man And all but still, it ain’t right.

Wyatt grunts and nods, perturbed. Outside the others mount up but Curly Bill stands drugged-up in the middle of the street, arms out, head back, eyes closed, luxuriating in the moonlight.

CURLY BILL
Boy, I feel great! Full of that Hop I got from Chinky. I feel Just capitol! You boys go ahead. I’m gonna stick around awhile, Howl at the moon.

The others shrug and ride off. Curly Bill pulls his pistol, spinning it. Back inside the Oriental it’s late, few patrons remain. A few beats then suddenly everyone jumps as GUNSHOTS echo from outside. White goes to the window, looks outside:

WHITE
Curly Bill. He’s over across the Street shootin’ out the lights.

CLUM
This is great, this is just great.

Just then Behan dashes in, white as a sheet, Josephine in tow:

BEHAN
Have you been out in the street? Somebody’s got to do something.

CLUM
You’re the Sheriff.

BEHAN
It’s not County business, it’s a Town matter.

Outside Curly Bill starts taking potshots at a passerby’s feet, making him dance down the street and scurry for cover. Curly Bill cackles. Inside White turns uneasily to Wyatt:

WYATT
Why don’t you just leave it alone?

WHITE
No, I gotta do something. I don’t Suppose you’d card—

WYATT
None of my business, Fred.

Wyatt keeps dealing, Doc keeps playing. White draws himself up and exits. Outside, Curly Bill reloads and keeps shooting. White steps out into the street. We feel a sense of inverted terror as he draws his gun and we SEE that his hand is trembling. He crosses the street, coming up behind Curly Bill:

WHITE
Hey, Curly? Come on now, boy…

Curly Bill spins around. White’s gun stares him in the face.

CURLY BILL
Well, howdy, Fred!

Back in the bar, Wyatt puts his cards down, looks over at Doc.

WYATT
Maybe I ought to go out there.
You will or you won’t. Don’t look
To me. I’m going to sleep.

Doc lays his head down on the keys, passes out. Wyatt frowns for a moment. Finally he stands, turning to Morgan:

WYATT
Go wake up Virgil.
(turns to Joyce)
Hey Milt, lend me a sidearm, will you?

Joyce hands him a Colt from under the bar. Outside White covers Curly Bill, trembling harder now. An adrenaline rush in a man White’s age is hard to look at, he seems so frail, so vulnerable. Even his voice has a quavering edge to it:

WHITE
Hand that over. Come on now.

CURLY BILL
Why sure, dad. I’m only in fun.
Here she is.

With a reassuring smile, Curly Bill holds his pistol out butt-first. White reaches for it, visibly relieved. But quick as a snake’s tongue Curly Bill spins it around and FIRES POINT BLANK into White’s chest, blowing him over backward, the blast so close it sets his clothes on fire. Curly Bill turns just as Wyatt flashes into frame and SLAMS him over the head with his pistol barrel, laying him out in a groaning heap.

Wyatt glances at White lying semi-conscious in the street, chest heaving, eyelids fluttering, making weak little bird-like sounds, smoke rising from his smoldering shirt and vest. Clum runs up:

WYATT
Put his clothes out.

Clum pats the embers out in White’s clothes but as Wyatt starts to haul Curly Bill up he suddenly finds himself surrounded by Ike, Billy Clanton, and six other Cowboys.

IKE
Turn loose of him.

WYATT
He just killed a man.

BILLY
He said to turn loose of him.

WYATT
Well I’m not so go home.

IKE
Swear to God, Mister, step aside
Or we’ll tear you apart.

The Cowboys tense up, ready for action. Wyatt holds his ground, his hard, steady gaze zeroing in on Ike:

WYATT
You. Come here a second.
Ike steps up, full of brass. Without warning Wyatt jabs the muzzle of his pistol into his forehead, snapping his head back. Wyatt cocks the pistol. The other Cowboys hush. Ike freezes. Wyatt’s eyes bore into him.

    WYATT
    You die first, get it? The others
    Might get me in a rush but before
    That I’m gonna make your head
    Into a canoe. Understand?

Ike stands stock still. Billy steps forward, undaunted:

    BILLY
    He’s bluffin’! Let’s rush him!

This is it. The Cowboys poise themselves, ready to start, but:

    O.S. VOICE
    And you, you simpleton, you’re next.

Again a hush. Doc stands behind Wyatt, still drunk, but with his .38 trained on Billy. Billy sneers:

    BILLY
    Hell, he can’t hit nothin’. He’s
    So drunk he’s probably seein’ Double.

Doc pulls out his .45, training it, too, on Billy:

    DOC
    I have two guns. One for each of you.

Billy pauses, chastened. Suddenly there’s another commotion as Virgil and Morgan bull their way through the crowd from behind with shotguns.

    VIRGIL
    All right, look out! Break it up.
    Go home, all of you, go home now…

This breads the group’s will and things suddenly calm down dramatically as the Cowboys disperse. Wyatt lowers his pistol, heaving a sigh of relief as he pulls the still-groggy Curly Bill to his feet and hauls him reeling toward the jail.

    WYATT
    Come on, you…

    CURLY BILL
    Crack me back of the head like
    Some stinkin’ bull. Hell, you
    Ain’t no fightin’ man, you’re
    Just a cop.

DELETED

EXT – JAIL/ALLEN STREET/HOTEL – NIGHT
Later. As the Earps and Doc step out on the sidewalk we can see the semi-conscious Curly Bill through the front door of the jail laying in one of the cells, holding a bloody kerchief to his head. Wyatt closes the door, locks it, gives Clum the keys.

WYATT
There. He’ll keep till morning

The street is quiet as they start back toward the Oriental. Virgil and Morgan following at a discreet distance, smirking:

VIRGIL
Keep your eye on that brass ring.
Don’t let anything side-track you.

WYATT
I know, I need a keeper.

Meanwhile across the street at the hotel Josephine turns to Behan.

BEHAN
Well I guess you can see, never a Dull moment. Maybe you should Stay around to see what happens Next. Who know? You might find a Future here.

JOSEPHINE
Maybe even my destiny.

DELETED
DELETED

INT – ORIENTAL – DAY

Morgan’s hound sleeps in the corner while Virgil and Morgan shoot pool. Wyatt looking on.

WYATT
…but he says did I actually see it happen and I said, no, when I arrived Fred’d already been shot. So the judge said, can’t have a Murder without a witness—case Dismissed. Can you beat it? After All that. Oh hell, who cares, None of my business anyways.

Clum enters, frowning and anxious, just as Morgan sinks a shot.

MORGAN
Boy, I love this game. When we’re Finally set we gotta each have a Billiard room in our houses.

CLUM
Excuse me, Wyatt, just a moment,
Please, I wanted to try and Reason with you. We still haven’t Found a Marshal and—

VIRGIL
Come on Mayor, he already told
You no.

CLUM
What about you? You were a lawman.

VIRGIL
I’m busy. We’re all busy. Sorry,
Mayor, but you’re really barkin’
Up the wrong tree.

WYATT
You tell ’em, Virge.

Clum exits shaking his head. They keep playing. After a beat:

WYATT
You know, I was thinkin’, maybe
We ought to open our own place.
That’s the real money. Build it
Up, milk it for all it’s worth,
Then sell it off for a bundle and Breeze out of this burg with more Money than Croesus and ready to Live like kings. Let’s you and me
Take a walk around town, Virge,
See if we can scout us out a
Couple of nice lots.

VIRGIL
I can’t hardly believe it. It’s
Working out just like you said,
Wyatt. We’re lootin’ this burg
Six ways through Sunday.

WYATT
Pretty fun too, isn’t it?

VIRGIL
Kinda, actually, yeah. I gotta admit.

EXT – COTTAGE ON EDGE OF TOWN – DAY

Virgil and Wyatt walk down a quiet, tree-shaded lane on the outskirts of town. Suddenly a rubber ball rolls into their path. A small BOY plays in the front yard of a nearby cottage. Virgil and Wyatt approach, Virgil returning the ball:

VIRGIL
What’re you up to today, son?

The boy stands stock still, staring at the men in silence.
WYATT
Cat got your tongue?

He turns and walks back to the street without another word.

WYATT
Wait a minute, Virgil! Where you goin’?

Virgil keeps going. Wyatt starts after him, leaving mother and child in confusion as….

DELETED

INT – VIRGIL’S PARLOR – DAY

In tight on a gleaming silver shield, “Town Marshal, Tombstone, A.T.” PULL BACK to reveal it pinned to Virgil’s breast. He sits by his parlor hearth with Morgan at his side. Wyatt sits opposite with his head in his hands.

VIRGIL
I couldn’t help it, Wyatt. I Looked at that woman and it was Just like somebody slapping me in
The face. I mean these people’re
Afraid to even walk down the Street and I’m trying to make Money off it like some kind of God damn vulture. That’s not me,
That’s somebody I don’t even know.

WYATT
Virgil, please. Don’t do this to me.

VIRGIL
It’s got nothin’ to do with you,
Wyatt. It’s—

WYATT
Nothing to do with me? I’m your Brother for Christ’s sake. God, I
Don’t believe this.
(turns to Morgan)
Talk to him, will you? Or hit him.
(no answer, pauses)
Oh no, don’t tell me…

Morgan looks down in sheepish silence. Then he pulls back his coat, revealing the Deputy’s badge on this vest. Wyatt groans.

MORGAN
Like you said, Wyatt. We’re Brothers. Gotta back your Brother’s play. Just did like I Figured you would.
WYATT
Listen to me, both of you. This
Is no good. This is trouble we Don’t need. For the first time in Our lives we got a chance to stop
Wandering and finally be a Family. Do this and you throw it
All away. You saw what happened
To Fred White.

MORGAN
Come on, we’re not about pickin’
Fights. Just gonna keep a little Order, that’s all.

WYATT
Yeah?

MORGAN
Like you said, just gotta know
How to handle ‘em. Old Fred Wasn’t up to it. We know that We’re doin’, Wyatt.

WYATT
All right, say you’re right, say
You don’t get yourself killed.
There’s something else.
(turns to Morgan)
It’s too late for Virge, he Already rolled his bone. But it’s Not too late for you, Morg.

MORGAN
What’re you talkin’ about?

Wyatt exhales wearily then crouches down in front of his baby brother, looking deep in his eyes, his voice soft, plaintive:

WYATT
All the years I worked the Cowtowns, I was only ever mixed
Up in one shooting. Just one. A Man got killed. Wasn’t my fault,
Just doin’ my job. I don’t even Know if it was my bullet that Dropped him, but… I don’t kno,
It’s sort of hard to explain. At First I just felt funny, you Know, kind of clammy inside. But When it finally sunk in what I’d Done… Believe me, boy, you
Don’t ever want to feel that way.
Not ever.
(pauses)
Didn’t even make a dent, did I?
(stands, exits)
You’re both makin’ a big mistake.

EXT – DESERT, HOOKER RANCH – DAY

Armed with a borrowed pistol and carbine, Wyatt gallops through the desert on one of his other big blacks, eyes scanning the tracks beneath him. He rides up and stops at a well near a large ranch house. He dismounts, studying tracks as rancher HENRY HOOKER rides up, strong, noble-looking, like something from a Frederic Remington canvas. Wyatt nods. Hooker nods back.

WYATT
This Hooker’s ranch?

HOOKER
That’s right. And I’m Hooker.

WYATT
You seen anything of a man on Horseback leading a black Stallion?

Hooker suddenly falls silent, looking at the ground nervously.

WYATT
Well you must’ve seen somethin’,
The trail runs right by your Waterhole.
(no answer)
Oh, I see. So it must’ve been a Cowboy, right? Really got you People treed, don’t they?

HOOKER
Look, Mister, it’s fine for you Boomers to court trouble, you’re Just passin’ through. Us Cattlemen gotta live here. Best I Can do’s point you up to the cut. That’s their roost.

Wyatt nods his thanks. Hooker looks down, ashamed. Wyatt stares at him a moment. There’s something genuinely troubling about so strong a man living in fear. Wyatt rides on, shaking his head….

INT – DESERT CAMP – DAY

A small camp near a clump of trees. Pony Deal brews coffee while McMasters leans against a fallen oak log feeding an eager pack of mongrel pups from a block of jerky as Wyatt rides up.

MCMASTERS
Run for your lives, boys! It’s That great two-gun dog-catcher From Kansas!

WYATT
McMasters, isn’t it? Listen, you Seen a black stallion with—
MCMASTERS
Look, I got a rule. I don’t talk
To lawmen. Dog-catchers neither.

WYATT
I’m not a lawman, I’m just a
Private citizen getting’ my Property back

MCMASTERS
Well in that case, I saw your Horse. Billy Clanton was takin’
Him up to the Cut to show him
Off. The boys’re all up there
Right now, branding. And in a Mood. Still want your property
Back, Mr. Private Citizen?

EXT – MOUNTAIN ROAD – DAY
Wyatt and McMasters ride along side-by-side through the hills.

WYATT
So what about you Cowboys anyway?

MCMASTERS
If I had to explain it you
Wouldn’t understand. Just say
We’re brothers to the bone.

WYATT
Yeah, but some of the things they Say your brothers’ve done…

MCMASTERS
There’s all kinds of horses,
Ain’t there? Same with Cowboys.
What they do’s their affair. I
Don’t preach and I don’t judge. I
Ain’t no dog-catcher.

EXT – RUSTLER’S PARK – DAY
A wide plateau in the mountains dotted with tents, water and fee troughs, rope corrals, etc. Cowboys cut out steers while others crouch around fires, cooking, looking up with naked hostility as Wyatt rides up. McMasters points to the edge of camp where Billy Clanton is currying Wyatt’s stallion.

MCMASTERS
You seem like a nice fella. Like
To’ve know you better. Had you lived.

Wyatt rides on, making for Billy. Ike steps up with INDIAN HAWK SWILLING, the giant half-breed. They walk alongside Wyatt.
IKE
Hey, law-dog. The hell you doin' here?

SWILLING
How 'bout I just drag you off
That horse and eat you blood raw?

Wyatt ignores them, riding up to within 20 feet of Billy and dismounting. Billy looks up, supremely confident and unconcerned.

WYATT
Where’d you get that horse?

BILLY
Beauty, ain’t he?

WYATT
I asked where you got him.

BILLY
Where do you think? I stole him.

Everyone laughs. More cowboys gather, jeering. Wyatt steps closer.

WYATT
Look, I don’t want any trouble
With you but that’s my horse and I mean to have him back. One way
Or another.

BILLY
Come and get him.

WYATT
Look kid, I know what it’s like,
I was a kid, too. Even stole a Horse once. But you can’t--

IKE
Don’t sweet-talk him, make a move.

SWILLING
Yeah, go ahead, Mister. Make a move.

Billy steps back, poised. Ike and Swilling do the same. 3 more Cowboys move up behind him. The scene seems on the brink of explosion when Curly Bill suddenly STREAKS into frame on his buckskin mare, majestic and 10 times life size as he pulls back and SKIDS to a stop in front of Wyatt, raising a giant roostertail of dust, making everyone but Wyatt recoil.

CURLY BILL
Give him his horse, Billy.

IKE
Come on, Curly! Don’t let him—
Billy reluctantly hands over the leadline. Wyatt mounts and rides off with Dick Nailor in tow, Curly Bill riding alongside.

CURLY BILL
Shut up.
Give him his horse, Billy.

CURLY BILL
Feel bad about ol’ Fred. Just Can’t hold back when I’m feelin’
Woolly. Still, feel kinda bad.
But now we’re square. Anyway no
Use for holdin’ a grudge. I
Deserved a rap in the head.

WYATT
Make you a deal. My brother took Over the Marshal’s office in Tombstone. Got it in his head
He’s gonna make the place safe
For widows and orphans. You and Your boys stay out of his way,
I’ll make sure he stays out of yours.

CURLY BILL
Fair enough. You know I got to Admit, you got a lot of bark on
You comin’ up here like this.

WYATT
They were all gonna jump me back
There. What ever happened to one Against one?

CURLY BILL
Ain’t our way. We go all on one,
One on all. Fight one of us, you
Fight us all. That’s the Cowboy way.

WYATT
And how come you call yourselves
Cowboys? Cowhands ride for the brand.

CURLY BILL
Oh, we ride for a brand all right.
(gives Wyatt the finger)
This brand. How ‘bout you?

WYATT
(points thumb at self)
This brand.

CURLY BILL
We’re gonna get along just fine.

EXT – ALLEN STREET – DAY
A lazy afternoon. The Earps and Clum lounge in front of the hotel.

CLUM
I can’t thank you enough. Since
You took over there hasn’t been a Single problem. We’re finally Becoming a civilized town.

VIRGIL
Nothin’ to it.

WYATT
Maybe I jumped the gun. Maybe
Those Cowboys aren’t near as bad
As they’re painted. You know I
Was thinkin’, there’s a lot of Money in the cattle business…

VIRGIL
Wait a minute, you thinkin’ of Getting in bed with the Cowboys?

WYATT
Business is business. Don’t have To love ‘em to work with ‘em. Not
If there’s money in it.

VIRGIL
You are the one, Wyatt. You sure are.

EXT – GUADALOUPE CANYON – MAGIC HOUR

Old Man Clanton leads 4 other Cowboys with a herd through the rocky canyon, slipping a flask and singing as the first shot RINGS OUT from the rocks above, becoming a FUSILLADE. When the dust settles, all are dead except the Old Man who lies pinned under his horse, semi-conscious. FIGURES emerge from the shadows. It’s the Rurales led by the same Young Rurale from before. He bends down to the dazed Old Man, speaking carefully:

YOUNG RURALE
The old one you kill. This was my father.

OLD MAN CLANTON
(sits up suddenly)
What, and I’m supposed to Tremble? Kiss my ass, Messican.

Hissing gleefully, he jams a derringer under the Young Rurale’s chin and FIRES, blowing off his sombrero as he falls. The other Rurales fire, emptying their guns into the Old Man as if he were some monstrous rattlesnake that might bite them….

EXT – RUSTLER’S PARK – NIGHT

Curly Bill, Ringo, and the others are by the fire, passing a bottle, as Frank Still well gallops up and dismounts, breathless:
In tight on Curly Bill as the news sinks in. He clenches his fist in rage, then bites a knuckle, getting his control back.

CURLY BILL
All right, first thing’s first:
It’s my outfit now, I’m runnin’
The show. Ringo’s number two man.

IKE
Your outfit? I’m next in line.

CURLY BILL
You ain’t got enough in your Britches. Think you can prove Otherwise, go ahead.

Seething with humiliation, Ike mounts up and rides off.

CURLY BILL
Anybody else?

No takers. Curly Bill turns back to business:

CURLY BILL
All right. Billy, go after Ike And cool him off then go find the McLaurys, tell ‘em what happened And keep an eye on things. Wes Fuller and Bill Claiborne, too. Rest of you come with me. We’re Goin’ to Mexico.

They mount in a bunch and take off south like the wind….

EXT – DESERT – DAY

Wyatt is up on his stallion, riding along the foot of a high hill. Coming to a cut, he suddenly stops. Josephine is 100 yards up ahead, gorgeously impressive in a black velvet riding habit, riding side-saddle through the cut on a pretty mare.

WYATT
Oh, hell…

Looking for an escape, Wyatt turns up a narrow trail on the side of the cut. He follows it as it winds around the hill then abruptly drops back down and comes out on the other side of the cut right in front of Josephine. She waves. He groans:

JOSEPHINE
Well, hello.
WYATT
We’ve never actually met. My Name’s—

JOSEPHINE
Wyatt Earp, I know. I was Beginning to think we’d never Meet. This is fortuitous. That Means lucky.

WYATT
I know what it means.

Suddenly Wyatt’s stallion groans nervously, throwing its head, aroused by the presence of the mare.

JOSEPHINE
What is it?

WYATT
Easy now… That mare’s in season.

JOSEPHINE
Oh…
(calms her horse)
Now she’s starting. How do they know?

WYATT
They know. It’s the scent. We Better split ‘em up.

JOSEPHINE
I have a better idea, let’s run
It out of them!

Before Wyatt can stop her she’s off at a full gallop. Wyatt pauses, debating with himself. Finally:

WYATT
Yeah, I’m an oak all right.

He takes off at a dead run. Catching up, the horses find their rhythm, breaking into a smooth gallop, flying over a jet black plain of volcanic ash into a rolling meadow carpeted with yellow desert poppies, so bright it almost hurts your eyes to look at them. Coming off a rise the desert floor shears off into a wide crevice. Josephine heads right at it.

WYATT
You’re not that crazy, are you?

JOSEPHINE
Oh, yes I am!

A crack of her crop and she streaks toward it. Wyatt grits his teeth and follows suit. The sound of their hoofbeats stops for a long instant as they take the jump together, sailing through the air side-by-side, Josephine giggling like a little girl. They light on the other side and gallop on….

EXT – DESERT – MAGIC HOUR
They pull up at a huge desert stone formation, a canopy of white sandstone with vermillion streaks swirling through it looming over them like a giant oyster shell. Wyatt dismounts, helping Josephine. He takes his long duster from his saddle and lays it on a wide, table-shaped rock for them to sit on.

JOSEPHINE
That was lovely!

WYATT
You know you almost got us both
Killed back there?

JOSEPHINE
Fun though, wasn’t it?

WYATT
You’d die for fun?

JOSEPHINE
Wouldn’t you? You’re laughing! I
Was sure you never laughed.

WYATT
I laugh sometimes

JOSEPHINE
Yes, but how often? Tell me, are You happy?

WYATT
Am I happy? I don’t know. Happy
As the next man, I guess. I don’t Laugh all day long like an idiot,
If that’s what you mean.

JOSEPHINE
You’re a little touchy about it.

WYATT
I’m not touchy, I just, it’s a Silly question, that’s all. Am I
Happy? Are you happy?

JOSEPHINE
Of course, I’m always happy.
Unless I’m bored. That blonde
Woman, is that your wife?

WYATT
What about her?

JOSEPHINE
Nothing… Tell me, what do you
Want out of life?

WYATT
Where do you get these questions?
JOSEPHINE
Just answer.

WYATT
I don’t know, make some money.
Have some kids, you know.

JOSEPHINE
Doesn’t suit you.

WYATT
How would you know?

JOSEPHINE
Just doesn’t, that’s all.

WYATT
Well I ought to know my own mind
And I’m tellin’ you what suits me
Is a family and kids. That suits
Me right down to the ground. In Fact, that’s my idea of heaven.
(pauses)
All right, what’s your idea of heaven?

JOSEPHINE
Room service.

Wyatt laughs, almost in spite of himself. Josephine beams.

JOSEPHINE
See? You’re laughing again. But That’s what I want. Go places and Move and never look back and just Have fun. Forever. That’s my idea
Of heaven. Need someone to share
It with, though.

WYATT
You mean Behan?
(see her shrug)
Then why are you with him?

JOSEPHINE
Well he’s handsome and he’s Charming. He’s all right. For Now. Don’t say it, I know, I’m Rotten. I can’t help it. I’ve Tried to be good but it’s too Boring.

WYATT
The way you talk. Never heard a Woman talk like that.
JOSEPHINE
Oh look, I haven’t got time to be Proper, I want to live. I’m a woman, I like men. If that’s Unladylike then I guess I’m not a Lady. At least I’m honest.

WYATT
Well you’re different, no arguing
That. But you’re a lady all right.
I’ll take my oath on it.

He looks at her, enchanted, but suddenly his face clouds.

JOSEPHINE
What’s wrong?

WYATT
I don’t know, doesn’t make any Sense. I almost can’t look at
You. Like it hurts.

JOSEPHINE
I know, me too. What should we do
About it?

He takes her in his arms and kisses her. She sinks in his arms. He kisses her again then falls to her knees, throwing his arms around her legs and pressing his face into the folds of her skirts.

WYATT God…

She runs a hand through his hair. He stands, lifting her with him until they are face-to-face and she can feel him pressing into her. After a beat:

JOSEPHINE
You know this is adultery. You
Burn in hell for that.

WYATT
Then let’s make sure we get our Money’s worth

EXT – DESERT – MAGIC HOUR

They loll on the rock, facing each other, clothes in disarray.

JOSEPHINE
I must say this certainly has Been an unexpected little Windfall.

WYATT
Fortuitous even.
JOSEPHINE
And I don’t even know your full name.

WYATT
Easy to fix. Wyatt Berry Stapp Earp.

JOSEPHINE
And I’m Josephine Sarah Marcus.
My friends call me Josie.

WYATT
Josie… No, I’m gonna call you Sadie.

JOSEPHINE
I hate Sadie.

WYATT
Well you’ll always be Sadie to me.

JOSEPHINE Always?

WYATT
Getting late. We better get back.

He looks away and stands, helping her up. They go to their horses. He lifts her up into her saddle and stands awhile, arranging the folds of her skirt. After a beat:

JOSEPHINE
So I assume we’re regarding this
As just a kind of interlude.

WYATT
Look, it’s too much of a tangle.
I already cast my lot. I can’t go Back and I can’t sneak, feel back Enough as it is.

JOSEPHINE
You feel bad about this? About me?

WYATT
I didn’t mean it that way.

JOSEPHINE
You know you don’t have to sneak.
You could stay with me. I know
Could make you so happy.

WYATT
I can’t, I’m sorry. Forgive me.

He mounts and rides off with a wave. She watches him awhile….
INT – FLY’S PHOTOGRAPHIC GALLERY – DAY

A Victorian photographer’s studio behind the O.K. Corral. A large skylight overhead illuminates the backdrop as CAMMILIUS S. FLY, the prosperous-looking owner prepares his camera. Josephine is o.s. in the dressing room on the left:

FLY
What mood would you like for this Picture, Miss Marcus? Any Particular occasion you’re Commemorating?

JOSEPHINE O.S.
I want to remember exactly how I Looked on this day so I want you To take a picture of me…

She steps out wearing a diaphonous veil shrouding her from head to toe. Though it partially obscures her form, we can see that she’s completely nude underneath. Fly gasps.

JOSEPHINE
…all of me.

Fly fumbles with his camera, his composure gone. She turns to a nearby mirror, studying herself—black tresses, rounded lips, maddening curves, and smokey eyes—a dark angel. She smiles:

JOSEPHINE
Because I’m wonderful.

INT – WYATT’S HOUSE – NIGHT

Mattie lies in bed, lost in an opium dream. She snaps out of it and sits up as Wyatt enters and gives her a kiss, glancing at the half-empty laudanum bottle on the nightstand.

WYATT
That the bottle Lou gave you? Better go easy on that stuff.

MATTIE
I know what I’m doing. Where have You been?

WYATT
Out ridin’. So… how you doin’?

MATTIE
I don’t know. I’m all right.

WYATT
Really? You sure?

MATTIE
Sure I’m sure. What is this?

Wyatt sits down on the bed, suddenly intent, his face alight:
WYATT
Well, I was thinking, we’ve
Already made a pile of money.
Maybe we should just pull up
Stakes and move on. And we could Stay on the move, you know? Just Keep going, see the world. Live
On room service the rest of our Lives. How’d that be?

MATTIE
Wyatt, what’re you talkin’ about?

WYATT
Just thinkin’ out loud. Forget it.

INT – ORIENTAL – NIGHT

Dark circles under his eyes, looking dreadful, Doc is at the corner table with Virgil, Behan, Ike Clanton, and the McLaurys. Josephine lounges by the piano, luscious in a white gown, singing “Frankie and Johnny” in a torchy voice. Wyatt enters, blanching at the sight of Josephine. Joyce appears at his elbow:

JOYCE
New singer. Ain’t she somehin’?

MORGAN
Doc won’t quit, been up 36 hours.
Clanton came in an hour ago, they Switched over to poker. Tried to Get him to bed but he just won’t Let go.

WYATT
I know. And nobody can make him.

They go over to Doc’s table and sit down. Doc beams drunkenly:

DOC
Wyatt! Just in time. Pull up a chair.

WYATT
Been hittin’ it awful hard, Doc.

DOC
Nonsense, I have not yet begun to Defile myself.

WYATT
(touches his shoulder)
But Doc—

DOC
I won’t be pawed at, thank you
Very much
WYATT
Sorry, sorry…

KATE
(puts arm around Doc)
That’s right. Doc can go all day
And all night and then some.
Doc’s my man. Doc’s my lovin’
Man. Have another one, lovin’ man.

She kisses Doc. Behan nudges Wyatt:

BEHAN
What d’you think of the singer?

WYATT
Nice voice.

BEHAN
That’s not what I meant.

Behan gives him a wink. Wyatt shifts uneasily in his seat. This hand is down to Doc and Ike and the pot is huge. Doc shows his hand. Ike throws his cards down in a drunken rage:

IKE
Son of a bitch! That’s twelve
Straight hands! Nobody’s that lucky.

The Earps stiffen as the Cheshire cat smile comes over Doc:

DOC
Why, Ike, whatever do you mean?

VIRGIL
Come on, boys, take it easy.

DOC
Maybe poker’s not your game, Ike.
I know, let’s have a spelling Contest!

IKE
(stands)
I’ll wring your scrawny neck for you!

VIRGIL
(grabs him)
That’s enough, Clanton.

IKE
You takin’ his part? I’m the one
Was cheated. God damn pimps,
You’re all in it together.
VIRGIL
        Nobody’s in anything, Clanton,
    You’re drunk. Go home and sleep
    It off.

IKE
Get your God damn hands off me!
Don’t you ever put your hands on One of us! Don’t you ever try to Man-handle a Cowboy! We’ll out
Your God damn pimp’s heart out!
    Understand, pimp?

VIRGIL
        Don’t you threaten me, you
    Little—

Violence seems imminent. Wyatt jumps in, separating them. Behan notices as Josephine gasps, a look of alarm crossing her face.

WYATT
        Virgil, don’t! Take it easy! Ike,
    Just go home and forget it, will you?

IKE
        I ain’t forgettin’ nothin.

Ike lurches to the bar. Behan takes Josephine aside, whispering:

BEHAN
        I saw that look on your face just now.
    What’s between you and Wyatt?

JOSEPHINE
        Absolutely nothing.

DOC
        Well that certainly was a bust. I Want my money back. Come,
    Darling, let’s seek our Entertainment elsewhere.

Doc stands up, taking Kate’s arm to leave. But he falls back down dizzily, suddenly breaking out in a sweat and coughing.

KATE
        What’s wrong, Doc?

DOC
        Nothing. Not a thing. I’m right
    As the mail.

Again he tries to stand. This time he keels over onto the floor and starts coughing up blood. Wyatt rushes to him.
They lift the unconscious Doc off the floor. Ike turns to Joyce.

IKE
What’s wrong with him?

JOYCE Lunger.

INT- DOC’S ROOM – NIGHT

Later. Doc sits up in bed, revived but looking like death warmed over, mouth gaping open, eyes swimming with every breath. DR. GOODFELLOW stands by the bed, putting on his jacket.

DR. GOODFELLOW
Your condition is quite advanced. I’d say you’ve lost some 60 percent of your lung tissue. Maybe more.

DOC
So what does that mean?

DR. GOODFELLOW
Two years, two days, hard to say. If you have any chance, it’s to stop now—smoking, drinking, Gambling, night-life. You must have a healthy diet and most importantly, you must attempt to deny your marital impulse.

DOC
Well, that sounds inviting.

DR. GOODFELLOW
Sorry but I’m afraid you’ve no choice.

He takes his bag and exits, leaving Doc alone with the abyss. Kate enters, going to his bedside, and starts rolling him a cigarette.

KATE
How you feeling, Doc?

DOC Better.

KATE
That’s good. I knew it wasn’t nothin’.
DOC
We must talk, darling. It appears
We have to… redefine the nature
Of our association.

KATE
What’s that mean, Doc? You know I
Don’t understand when you talk up
High like that. You mean you
Don’t want to be my lovin’ man no more?

DOC
Not exactly…

KATE
I’m a good woman to you, Doc.
Don’t I always take care of you?
Nobody cares for you like me. I’m
A good woman.

DOC
Yes, I know. You are a good woman.

Kate smiles, licking the cigarette. She puts it in his mouth and leans over to light it so her ample bosom bulges over her bodice. As Doc stares at her chest something behind his eyes seems to shut down. He takes a long drag from the cigarette.

DOC
Then again, you may be the Antichrist.

DELETED

INT – ORIENTAL – DAWN

The cold blue light of dawn peeks through the windows. Ike drinks at the bar, brooding. He reaches behind the bar for his guns, leaning his rifle against the brass rail.

IKE
Bastards think they can cheat me?

JOYCE
Nobody cheated you, Ike. Go home.

Ike reaches across the bar and slaps him. Joyce scowls, more irritated than hurt and too tired to make anything of it. The few other patrons left look up drowsily. Ike nods in drunken satisfaction, picking up his rifle:

IKE
And I don’t take no mouth from Any bartenders neither. There, See? Give somebody a rap on the beeper, get some God damn respect
Around here. Now you tell the Earps and Doc Holliday if I see ‘em on the street, I’m gonna send 'em all to hell on a shutter. You tell 'em that.

Ike and the McLaurys storm off as Virgil and Morgan step out onto the street. Wyatt turns to them in disbelief:

WYATT
What the hell's going on?

EXT – ALLEN ST/TELEGRAPH OFFICE – DAY

Walking down Allen, Ike stops the group at the telegraph office:

IKE
I want to send a telegram.

EXT – ALLEN STREET – DAY

We start to feel a growing sense of dread as 3 grim HORSEMEN come galloping out of the desert toward us. Billy Clanton, Wes Fuller, and Billy Claiborne ride into town, trotting by the jail with the Earps looking on.

VIRGIL
Billy Clanton, Wes Fuller, and Billy Claiborne. Now there's six
Of 'em. This is like a bad dream.

WYATT
Just stay calm, use your head.
It'll be all right. Just the Same, though…
(pauses, sighs)
Guess you better swear me in.

INT – WYATT'S HOUSE – DAY

In tight on a brass-mounted wooden case. It opens to reveal a gleaming Colt .45 with an extra long barrel, the gold shield inlaid on the burr walnut grips engraved with, “To Wyatt Earp, Peacemaker…” This is the Buntline Special, Wyatt Earp’s legendary sidearm. Wyatt takes it from the case and puts it in his coat pocket as Mattie looks on.

MATTIE
Though you swore you'd never Carry that thing again.

WYATT
Yeah, well, I swore a lot of things.

EXT – ALLEN STREET – DAY

Behan and Jospehine watch from the hotel as the 6 Cowboys, all but Ike armed with pistols, walk side-by-side down the middle of Allen.

BEHAN
I'm terribly afraid this looks
Like the end of the Earp brothers.
Josephine goes pale…

EXT – ALLEN ST/JAIL – DAY

The Cowboys swagger by defiantly, giving the Earps sidelong glances. Meanwhile, the street starts to BUZZ, townspeople beginning to notice that something is happening.

   VIRGIL
   Here they are again. Look at 'em.

   WYATT
   Easy, Virge, they’re just tryin’
   To egg us on.

Suddenly Doc appears from around a corner, a little the worse for wear in a long, dark Inverness cloak and carrying a big gold-headed walking stick.

   MORGAN
   What’re you doin’ out of bed, Doc?

   DOC
   What the hell’s going on? I’ve
   Had five people walk up to me
   Saying the Clantons and McLaurys
   Are gunning for me.

EXT – LOT BEHIND O.K. CORRAL – DAY

A vacant lot behind the OK Corral with Fly’s Gallery on the left and the Harwood house on the right. The Cowboys stand in a knot near their horses, passing a bottle around.

   FRANK
   Like to teach those bastards a lesson.

   BILLY
   Probably already scared them to death.

   TOM
   You call it, Ike. What’re we gonna do?

   IKE
   (grabs bottle)
   Gimme that.

EXT – ALLEN ST/JAIL – DAY

Virgil comes out of the nearby Wells Fargo office with a huge Stevens 10 gauge shotgun just as Joyce runs up.

   JOYCE
   Those Cowboys’re tellin’
   Everybody in town they’re gonna Clean you out. They’re down in That lot right now behind the OK Corral.
WYATT
Don’t worry, Doc, it’s not your problem.
You don’t have to mix up in this.

Doc turns on Wyatt, genuinely shocked and hurt.

DOC
That’s a hell of a thing for you
To say to me.

VIRGIL
What the hell’re we gonna do?

WYATT
Wait till the liquor wears off.
Once they start getting headaches
They’ll lose interest.

VIRGIL
Wyatt, they’re threatening our lives.

WYATT
You’ll never make that stick.

VIRGIL
They’re carrying guns in town.

WYATT
Virge, that’s a misdemeanor. You
Go down there to arrest ‘em,
Something goes wrong, maybe this
Time somebody gets his head
Broke, suddenly it’s a mess and
It won’t end there, you’ll have Cowboys comin’ around lookin’ for Trouble from here to Christmas.
You gonna risk all that over a Misdemeanor?

VIRGIL
(pauses, thinking)
No, damn it, it’s wrong, they’re Breakin’ the law.

WYATT
(pauses)
All right, Virge, your call. But Give Doc the shotgun. They’ll be Less apt to get nervy if they see
Him on the street howitzer.

Virgil trades the shotgun for Doc’s cane. Doc folds the shotgun under his cloak. They get set, waiting for Wyatt’s cue. Finally:
They start down Allen, footsteps pounding the board sidewalk, Virgil and Wyatt in front, Morgan and Doc in the rear. Bystanders step aside, trading whispers as they pass, turning onto 4th St…

EXT – LOT BEHIND O.K. CORRAL – DAY

Behan dashes around the corner into the lot, facing the Cowboys.

BEHAN

They’re on their way over here.

EXT – FREMONT STREET/OK CORRAL – DAY

The Earps and Doc turn off 4th onto Fremont St. Creek Johnson and Texas Jack Vermillion watch as they pass the grocer’s.

JOHNSON

There they go. Look kinda like preachers.

VERMILLION

Yeah. Or undertakers.

The vacant lot starts to come into view and the Earps are fighting nerves now. Fists clenched, gritting their teeth, eyes darting all over the street, they look all too human and nothing like their legend. It’s only Doc, bringing up the rear, who couldn’t care less. Wyatt narrows his eyes:

WYATT

Virge, you’re makin’ the arrest.
You make contact, I’ll back you
Up. Morgan’ll back me up, Doc’ll
Keep an eye out for trouble. And Keep your hands on your guns.
They even look like they’re gonna
Start something, buffalo ’em.
Right over the head.

VIRGIL

Wyatt, I know what I’m doin’.

WYATT

(sees onlookers)
Look at ’em all. They love it.
How in the hell’d we get Ourselves into this?

Just then Behan walks up holding up his hands, reassuring:

BEHAN

You don’t have to worry about a Thing. I just went down there and Disarmed them.

VIRGIL

You did? Great, thanks. Come on, boys.
The Earps quicken their step as Behan enters Fly’s gallery. Seeing the approaching Earp party, the Cowboys glance around at each other, setting themselves. Now at the end of the sidealk, the Earps can see that the Cowboys are still armed and their relief evaporates. Wyatt mutters under his breath:

WYATT
Oh, great. Disarmed my ass…

The Earps slow their step, gathering themselves. This is it, no turning back now. The Cowboys spread out. As the Earps get closer and closer, it seems as if the very air is electric with tension. But as they step into the street and fan out for their final approach, they suddenly do look like their legend, 4 tall figures in long black coats advancing in a line, grim and unstoppable, a fleeting moment in time frozen forever in our minds. Finally they stop. The 2 groups are facing each other, perhaps 20 feet apart. Doc raises the shotgun, the Cheshire cat smile spreading over his face. Virgil steps forward, his face set, holding up Doc’s cane:

VIRGIL
We’ve come to arrest you. Throw up your arms!

A weird moment of confusion where nobody seems to know what to do. Then Billy Clanton and Frank McLaury SLAP their hands to their guns. The Earps instantly tense up, hands on their pistols. Virgil waves his hands frantically, afraid they’ve misunderstood:

VIRGIL
Hold! I don’t want that!

Suddenly realizing what’s happening, Fuller and Claiborne bolt and dash into Fly’s gallery. Everyone else stands frozen, breath short, pulses pounding, each staring into the other’s wide-open eyes. Then something in Billy Clanton’s eyes seems to go dead and Wyatt groans under his breath as the awful realization hits him:

WYATT
Oh, my God…

Billy and Frank jerk their pistols and the scene EXPLODES, everything happening in SPLIT SECONDS as Wyatt draws and FIRES, knocking Frank down with a gutshot. Morgan FIRES, blowing Billy back against the wall of the Harwood house. Tom darts for the cover behind his horse as Ike dives onto Wyatt shrieking like a woman:

IKE
No, no, please! I don’t have a gun!

WYATT
This fight’s commenced. Get to Fightin’ or get away!

Wyatt hurls him aside. Ike sprints for the gallery. Tom FIRES over his saddle at Doc who tries for a shot but is blocked by the horse. Billly bounces back up, howling, and FIRES, the bullet piercing Virgil’s calf. He drops to one knee. Tom FIRES again. Doc FIRES one barrel into the air, the BLAST making the horse rear up, exposing Tom for a split second. Doc FIRES again. Tom’s side EXPLODES into red mist, the full charge of red mist, the full charge of buckshot SLAMMING him into the Harwood house. Tom drops his gun and teeters into the street, talking eerie little mincing steps, already dead but still moving, like a chicken with its head cut off. Billy FIRES again, dropping Morgan with a hole in his shoulder.
MORGAN
I’m hit.

Doc pull his Lightning and FIRES DOUBLE ACTION 1-2-3 times, hitting Billy in the abdomen while Frank bounds back into the fight, FIRING wildly. Virgil gets up, FIRING BACK. The whole scene now bathed in thick smoke, the fight starts swirling into the street, each man jockeying for position. Inside the gallery, Behan and Fuller watch at the window as Ike dives in. He snatches Fuller’s pistol and FIRES through the window. Ike’s bullets WHIZ past Wyatt’s ear. He spins around, calling to Doc:

WYATT Behind us!

In a flashing move taking less than a heartbeat, Doc pivots, replacing the .38 in this right hand with his big .45, then with one pass of his left hand RAPID FIRES quick as a machine gun burst 1-2-3-4-5 times, the bullets RIPPING through the gallery, showering Ike and the rest with splinters and broken glass.

BEHAN
Come on!

Behan hauls Ike up and they dash out the back door, Fuller and Claiborne right behind, all frantically running for their lives. Outside Billy gets to his knees, seemingly indestructible, and FIRES at Wyatt, Wyatt RETURNS FIRE. Eyes wild and bulging, a bloody hand clutching his wounds, Frank staggers across the lot, bearing down on Doc through the smoke:

FRANK
I got you now, you son of a bitch!

DOC
You’re a daisy if you do!

Doc opens his arms, giving Frank a clear shot at his chest. Frank FIRES. The bullet grazes Doc’s holster. Frank trudges closer, about to fire again but Doc DRILLS him through the heart while in the next millisecond Morgan FIRES from his prone position on the ground, the big .45 BLAST carrying away the top of Frank’s head. As the last shot echoes through the hills, Frank flops limply to the ground like a rag doll while out in the street his brother Tom finally runs out of steam and pitches face first in the dirt, leaving only Billy, leaning against the Harwood house, legs splayed out in front of him, absolutely shot to pieces, clicking his empty gun and wailing piteously as the smoke clears:

BILLY
More cartridges! Somebody load my gun…

He keeps repeating it with sinking volume as townspeople step timidly into the street. Fly bends down and takes Bill’s gun from his hand and the fight is officially over, having lasted only some 20 seconds. Wyatt helps Morgan to his feet as Behan strides briskly onto the scene, addressing Wyatt:

BEHAN
All right. You’re all under Arrest.

Wyatt looks at him in utter disbelief. Finally:

WYATT
I don’t think I’ll let you arrest Us today, Behan. Maybe tomorrow.
More bystanders arrive, a crowd scene rapidly developing. The Earp women run up from the west end of Fremont. Josephine fights her way through the crowd from the east. She and Wyatt catch sight of each other. She grins, tears in her eyes. He nods, smiling. Seeing the whole thing, Behan fumes. And so does MATTIE who turns and walks away while Allie and Lou run to their men, hugging them. Meanwhile Doc stands over Frank’s body, finger ing the graze over his thigh, jeering under his breath:

DOC
You call that shooting?

FLY
(comes up to Wyatt)
The McLaurys are both dead. Billy
Clanton’s just about gone.

Wyatt nods, pocketing his gun, sadly surveying the bloody scene.

WYATT
Guess we did our good deed for today.

DELETE

EXT – BOOT HILL – SUNSET

Fireworks EXPLODE in the darkening sky as a cortege of 50 Cowboys in their finest parade down the street toward Boot Hill, the crude little grave yard, Curly Bill and Ringo in the lead, Ike right behind with the 3 coffins and a banner saying: “Murdered On The Streets Of Tombstone”. As they take places at the gravesite Wyatt approaches Curly Bill.

WYATT
I’m sorry. If there was any other—

CURLY BILL
I know. Just did what you had to. That banner and stuff, that’s Just Ike. Don’t worry about it.

Wyatt nods, tips his hat, walks off. Looking after him, Curly Bill whispers:

CURLY BILL
Don’t worry about a thing

DELETE

INT- MORGAN’S BEDROOM – NIGHT

Morgan lies in bed, his shoulder in bandages. Wyatt sits by him

WYATT
How you doin’, boy?

MORGAN
Fine. Better.

Morgan looks out the window, staring at nothing. He looks tired, older, all the fun and youthful zest gone from his face.
MORGAN
You were right. It’s nothin’ like
I thought. I almost wish…

WYATT
I know, kid. I know. Me too.

Wyatt touches his arm, a look of unutterable sadness in his eyes. This is the one thing he didn’t want for his little brother….

EXT – RUSTLER’S PARK – NIGHT

The Cowboys are gathered around a huge bonfire, sparks drifting up toward the heavens, faces vivid in the firelight like an ancient warrior host. Curly Bill faces them, bottle in hand:

CURLY BILL
Here’s to the memory of Billy Clanton and Tom and Frank McLaury. They went out real Cowboys, dead game right up to Their last kick. They won their Places at the big table with Davy Crockett and Wild Bill and Old Man Clanton. They’re up there Right now tradin’ shots with ‘em. And they’ll never be forgot. Not Ever. Hundred years from now There’ll be men settin’ around a Campfire, passin’ a bottle, Tellin’ stories about those boys. They’re what you call immortal. And I say God bless ’em.

They all drink, long and deep, Ringo wiping away tears. Then:

CURLY BILL
All right, first we hang back, Just bide away till everybody Thinks this’s blown over. Then...

INT – DRESSING ROOM/BEDROOM, WYATT’S HOUSE – NIGHT

Mattie irons shirts in the adjoining bedroom while Wyatt finishes shaving in the dressing room, wiping foam from his face, looking in the cabinet for a towel. Opening the bottom drawer, a nest of small brown bottles clatters onto the floor. Laudanum bottles, all empty. Mattie looks up as Wyatt comes out, bottle in hand:

WYATT
Mattie. What about this?

MATTIE
(looks up, keeps ironing)
I need it.

WYATT
‘Least you admit it.
MATTIE
Admit what, I’m an opium fiend?
No, Wyatt, I just said I need it.
I need something to keep me warm
At night.

WYATT
Look, Mattie, I know you’re—

MATTIE
You know nothing. What you don’t Know would fill a book. Jesus, I Feel like it’s when you’re around
I need it most. You’re never Yourself, you never relax. Never.
Everything’s so stiff and dead.
You always have to keep a rein on Everything, ever yourself. Oh,
You smile sometimes, I’ve even Seen you laugh. But there’s no
Light in your smile for me,
Wyatt, nothing to keep me warm.
And I get cold, Wyatt. I get so cold.
(pauses)
What’s between you and that Jew woman?

This catches Wyatt off-guard. He looks at her. She sneers. Then:

WYATT
All right, look. I can make it
Right, I can make this up to you,
Mattie. I can, I swear.

MATTIE
Will you go to her and tell her
Right in front of me she’s
Nothing to you? Right out loud so
I can hear? Tell her she’s
Nothing, tell her she’s nobody,
Just dirt? Will you do that?

Wyatt falls silent. Mattie stands, staring at him a moment, then:

MATTIE
Until you can do that we’ve got Nothing to talk about, Wyatt.
Nothing. Now leave me alone.

She keeps ironing. Wyatt looks as if a building fell on him….

EXT – TOUGHNUT STREET – DAY

Behan comes out of Nellie Cashman’s, spots Josephine going down Toughnut. He catches up to her, pacing her. She keeps walking.
BEHAN
Listen, I want to talk to you.

JOSEPHINE
Not now. I don’t have time.

BEHAN
(grabs her)
I saw that look pass between you
And Wyatt at the fight. Listen to Me! You’re mine! Understand?
You’re my woman and I’m your man.

JOSEPHINE
My man? You told Wyatt you’d
Disarmed those men. Do you
Actually believe after that I Could see you as my man? You’re
Just a dirty little fixer.

BEHAN
You whore! You filthy whore!

A HAND reaches into frame, spinning Behan around. Morgan stands there, arm in a sling, red in his eye:

MORGAN
You don’t talk that way to a
Female human being! Not ever!

BEHAN
Look, I don’t want to take Advantage of an injured man but
You better—

With his good arm Morgan SLUGS Behan in the mouth. Behan drops like a leaf, as much to avoid a further injury as from the blow. Morgan turns to Josephine, leading her away. Across the street Curly Bill and Ringo share a flask, watching, Ringo looking even odder than usual. Curly Bill chuckles:

CURLY BILL
So she’s Wyatt’s slice now. Looks Like we got another name for the Tally book.

EXT – ALLEN STREET/ORIENTAL – LATE DAY

Later. The Earp brothers stand in front of the Oriental.

MORGAN
Dropped him, that was it. Sorry
If I made a worse mess for you.

WYATT
I’m the one made a mess. Made a
Right fair mess of the whole thing.

Wyatt looks down, miserable. Virgil looks up at the sky:
VIRGIL
Getting warmer. Guess spring’s comin’.

Just then Morgan sees Breakenridge passing by in silence.

MORGAN
Hello, Billy. I say hello, Deputy.

BREAKENRIDGE
(turns to them)
I don’t want to talk to you. Those Men you killed were my friends. I’m just a nothing, but if I Wasn’t I’d fight you, I’d fight You right now. So I don’t wanna Talk to you.

He hurries away, eyes tearing up. The Earps look on in amazement.

WYATT
All they ever did was make fun of him.

O.S. VOICE
Sister Boy should’ve stuck around.

They turn. A liquored-up RINGO stands behind them on the sidewalk like an apparition, murder in his eyes, hands thrust into the pockets of a long black buffalo coat, ivory gunbutts peeking out.

VIRGIL
What d’you want, Ringo?

RINGO
I want your blood and I want you Souls and I want them both right now.

WYATT
Don’t want any more trouble, Ringo.

RINGO
(steps up to Wyatt)
Well you got trouble and it Starts with you.

WYATT
I’m not gonna fight you, there’s No money in it. Sober up. Come On, boys.

Wyatt turns into the Oriental. His brothers follow. Ringo howls:

RINGO
Wretched slugs, don’t any of you Have the guts to play for blood?
O.S. VOICE
I’m your huckleberry.

Ringo turns. Doc stands there, smiling that Cheshire cat smile.

DOC
That’s just my game.

RINGO
All right, lunger. Have at it.

They face each other, eyes blazing, about to reach critical mass.

DOC
On three? You call it.

RINGO
Here it come: one—two—

At the last possible instant, Curly Bill flashes into frame along with Stillwell and Spence, grabbing Ringo from behind while the Earps step in front of Doc.

CURLY BILL
Johnny, don’t, Jesus! Come on, Son…
(turns to Earps)
Never mind. He’s drunk.

They haul Ringo up the street, out of earshot. Ringo is boiling:

RINGO
I want them spitting blood!

CURLY BILL
Easy, Johnny. Now ain’t the time.
(turns to others)
I tell you, boys, even I’m Worried what’ll happen once Ringo Runs this outfit! God have mercy!

He pulls Ringo into a doorway, away from the others. Tears in his eyes, clawing the air, Ringo is beside himself.

RINGO
There’s no God, there’s no devil. I hate the God damn world! I want To die!

CURLY BILL
Easy, son. You just need to get Your feet back under you, that’s All. Come on, boy, let’s kick South. Down to the old playground.

INT – ADOBE HOUSE – NIGHT
An adobe rancho in the Sonora desert, small, humbly furnished. Inside a Mexican family, 3 children, a husband and young wife eat dinner. Suddenly Curly Bill and Ringo BURST IN, guns drawn, shouting in Spanish. Everyone freezes and as the children start crying we feel the family’s sense of inner terror. Curly Bill looks the trembling young wife over, nodding at Ringo:

CURLY BILL
See son, there is a God after all!

EXT – ALLEN STREET/ORIENTAL – DUSK

Nightfall and the wind HOWLS down the street, kicking up dust in swirling columns. A FLASH of lightning streaks down from the purple clouds and a THUNDERCLAP crashes in our ears, echoing through town into the hills, making the horses neigh and fidget…

INT- ORIENTAL – DUSK

But inside it’s bright and warm. Florentino is alone at the bar, nursing a drink while Wyatt deals for Morgan and a few others. Virgil looks out at the storm, shaking his head:

VIRGIL
Gonna be one of those nights.

EXT- RUSTLER’S PARK – DUSK

The Cowboys are gathered on a rise. Curly Bill stands before them, silhouetted against the boiling sky, arms outstretched, exulting in the storm’s fury. He turns to his men, eyes ablaze:

CURLY BILL
All right, boys. Now’s the time
To get woolly.

INT – JOSEPHINE’S HOTEL ROOM – NIGHT

Josephine sits by the window, reading Swinburne. A KNOCK at the door. She answers it. Behan enters. She bristles, but:

BEHAN
Easy. I just wanted to tell you
Things’re about to start changing
Around here. Lots of so-called Hard cases and tough-nuts swagger
Around this town but none of ‘em’s got a clue about the real play. None of ‘em.

JOSEPHINE
I don’t understand.

BEHAN
You will after tonight. Bet on it.

INT – PARLOR, VIRGIL’S HOUSE – NIGHT

Allie and Louisa sip tea by a blazing fire in the hearth, warming themselves against the storm’s cold. Mattie sits nearby, sewing.
ALLIE
God, it’s a cold night. Come up
To the fire, Mattie.

Suddenly there’s a KNOCK at the door. Louisa looks out the window. Outside is the tall silhouette of a WOMAN in a dark cloak.

LOUISA
It looks like a woman.

Allie opens the door. Josephine enter, breathless, comes into the parlor. Mattie sits up in shock. The others gather round.

JOSEPHINE
Please, I know it’s awful me
Coming here, but listen, I can’t Say why, but I think something is — Another KNOCK. Allie goes to the window. There’s a weird sense of déjà vu as outside we again see a cloaked woman’s SILHOUETTE.

ALLIE
Now who in… It’s another woman.

Allie starts to open the door but Josephine suddenly leaps up and:

JOSEPHINE
No! Look out!

With her dancer’s quickness she dashes across the parlor, grabbing Allie and pulling her to the floor just as a tremendous SHOTGUN BLAST rips through the open doorway. The chandelier overhead explodes, showering the screaming women with broken glass and a harsh MALE VOICE cuts through the air as the shrouded figure dashes into the darkness:

MAN’S VOICE
Everybody dies!

INT- ORIENTAL – NIGHT

The sound of the gunshots are lost in the wind and thunder as Virgil gets up, yawning:

VIRGIL
Getting late. Guess I’ll turn in.

WYATT
Bundle up, Virge. Cold out there.

Virgil nods, exiting with a wave. Wyatt and Morgan keep playing, hardly noticing as moments later, Florentino walks out….

EXT – CORNER OF ALLEN & 5TH STREET – NIGHT

Virgil turns off Allen onto 5th, the wind whipping his coattails. He glances up as Florentino walks by, crossing 5th and ducking into a doorway. Virgil stops. SOMETHING seems to be moving in the shadows of an unfinished building on the opposite side of 5th….
INT – ORIENTAL – NIGHT

A BOOMING SOUND echoes outside, muffled by wind. Morgan looks up:

MORGAN
That thunder’s sure somethin’.

WYATT
That didn’t sound like thunder.

Moments later Virgil walks back in, pale, hatless, a blank look on his face. He moves with odd, shuffling steps, holding himself sideways. Wyatt and Morgan exchange puzzled glances, then:

WYATT
Virgil?

VIRGIL
Wyatt…

Virgil does an unsteady stutter-step, his face taking on a pleading, almost childlike look of panic. But as he turns his body toward Wyatt we suddenly see that his whole left side is in bloody shreds, his left arm dangling unnaturally by a few gory ribbons of flesh. His voice is a frightened sob:

VIRGIL
Wyatt!

He starts to swoon. Wyatt rushes over and grabs him as….

INT- HOTEL ROOM (VIRGIL) – NIGHT

The hotel room where they’ve taken Virgil. He’s on the bed, wrapped in bandages, semi-conscious. Wyatt and Morgan stand in the doorway with Doc and the women. Allie is at Virgil’s side, hands over her mouth as Dr. Goodfellow speaks in somber tones:

DR. GOODFELLOW
I’m afraid your husband’s been Very badly hurt. I had to remove
The entire left elbow joint. What
That means is, well I’m afraid—

ALLIE
Oh, no, no, no, NO!

She starts wailing. Suddenly alert, Virgil sits up, taking her in his big right arm, pulling her close, his voice calm, reassuring:

VIRGIL
No, no, don’t worry, honey. I Still got one arm left to hug you with.

She buries her face in his chest and sobs. He holds her, rocking her back and forth. Wyatt turns away, shutting his eyes.

INT- HOTEL ROOM (VIRGIL) – DAY
Virgil lies in bed, staring blankly into space. Wyatt sits at his side, hands over his face while Allie hovers in the b.g.

WYATT
It’s all my fault. If I hadn’t been
So damn smart, if I’d just… Oh
God, Virge, I’m so sorry.

ALLIE
Look, Wyatt, I don’t want to talk Right now.

WYATT
Virgil, what am I going to do?

VIRGIL
For God’s sake, just leave me alone.

Virgil grimaces in hopeless agony. Allie touches Wyatt’s arm.

ALLIE
He doesn’t want to talk now.

Wyatt stands, backing away. He turns pleadingly to Mattie standing in the doorway. She looks away. He walks out….

INT – HOTEL LOBBY – DAY

Wyatt comes into the lobby and freezes as McMasters approaches. Wyatt starts to walk by him, but McMasters steps into his path:

MCMASTERS
No, wait. Please. I know nothin’
I say’ll fix things but I want
You to know it wasn’t me.

WYATT
No? Brothers to the bone, right?

MCMASTERS
Not anymore, not after this.

Wyatt looks into McMasters’ eyes and we can see he means it….

INT – ORIENTAL – NIGHT

Morgan is by himself in the empty saloon, calmly shooting pool, his dog jumping enthusiastically at every shot as Wyatt enters.

MORGAN
Get down, boy.

WYATT
Morgan, are you crazy? They’re Out gunning for us! What the Hell’re you doin’?
MORGAN
What’s it look like? They want a Piece of me they can come and get
It, I’m not crawlin’ into my hole.

WYATT
Morg, use your head.

MORGAN
I am usin’ it, Wyatt. Been Wonderin’ how the hell we got in
This tangle. You know they hit
Clum’s house, too? Shot up his wife.
His wife. Who ever heard of
That? Men sneakin’ around in the Dark, back-shootin’, scarin’
Women? They’re bugs, Wyatt. You
Know all your smart talk about
Live and let live? Ain’t no live
And let live with bugs.

WYATT
I know, I was wrong. But Morg,
Look, we got to get out.

MORGAN
Listen to yourself, Wyatt. Lie
Down and crawl or you might get Hurt? What kinda talk is that?
That’s Virgil lyin’ over there,
Wyatt. Our own brother. Ruined
For life. No sir, I ain’t going
No place. You want to go, fine.
I’m stayin’ right here and have
It out with those bastards.

Morgan pulls back his vest, revealing Virgil’s badge. Wyatt drops into a corner chair, defeated. Morgan makes a shot, leaving only the 8 ball. A few beats. Seeing Wyatt’s misery, Morgan softens, poking him with the cue. Wyatt looks up. Morgan taps the middle pocket. Wyatt shakes his head.

MORGAN
How much you wanna bet?

Wyatt holds up his watch. Morgan frowns. Wyatt raises his brows:

WYATT
I just got it fixed.

MORGAN
You’re on.

Morgan has to lean over the table but he sinks the 8 ball, looking over at Wyatt in triumph. Wyatt applauds, rolling his eyes just as a BULLET SPANGS into the wall by his head. Wyatt dives for the floor as ANOTHER SHOT pierces the window. Wyatt jumps up, bounding to the door to see several FIGURES cash into the darkness. Wyatt turns back and freezed. Morgan lies across the table with one leg dangling over the edge, jerking and shuddering involuntarily. Wyatt rushes to him. The dog whines as Doc rushes in with Kate and McMasters. Wyatt is trembling.

WYATT
No, no! Get the doctor! Jesus Christ!

INTO – ORIENTAL – NIGHT

The curious crowd outside, watching through the windows. Morgan is on the pool table, lying on his side with his shirt pulled up. The dog cowers in the corner, whining while Dr. Goodfellow digs into the wound with a steel probe, making Morgan writhe in perfect agony. The doctor turns to Wyatt:

DR. GOODFELLOW
Hold him.

Wyatt takes Morgan in his arms. The doctor probes. Morgan jerks violently. Suddenly we hear a blood-curdling SCREAM. Louisa is in the doorway, tearing her hair, lost in utter hysterics.

WYATT
Oh, no, get her out of her! Jesus!

And now the whole scene sinks into hellish confusion with the dog whimpering, Louisa shrieking as others restrain her, and Morgan gives a violet jerk, breaking Wyatt’s grip. The doctor snarls, about at the end of his rope.

DR. GOODFELLOW
I said hold him, God damn it!

WYATT
Somebody shut that dog up!

Morgan takes Wyatt’s arm, his voice like a child’s.

MORGAN
You were right, Wyatt. They got Me good. Don’t let ‘em get you Too.

WYATT
Will somebody get the damn dog out—

MORGAN
Remember about the light you’re Supposed to see when you’re dyin’?

WYATT
Easy Morg, don’t think about that now.

MORGAN
Isn’t true. I can’t see a damn thing.

Tears well up in Wyatt’s eyes. He touches his brother’s face. Morgan’s eyelids start fluttering. Wyatt squeezes his hand.

WYATT
Morgan? Morgan!
The dog starts howling, long and loud and pitiful—and in the next moment the air is FILLED with howls as every dog and coyote for miles joins in the mourning. Wyatt backs away from his dead brother and trudges out onto the sidewalk, staring at the blood on his hands. Standing in the crowd across the street, Josephine sees Wyatt and starts for him. Behan grabs her. She wrenches free and with the whole town watching, starts running toward Wyatt. Seeing her, Wyatt backs away in horror, shaking his head:

WYATT
No, no, get away, get away from me…

JOSEPHINE
Wyatt…

She keeps coming. Wyatt panics. Finally, in desperation:

WYATT
Whore! Filthy whore! Get away From me!

She pauses, unable to believe her ears, then runs away crying. Fuming with rage, Kate starts after Wyatt. Doc pulls her back:

DOC
Can’t you see why he did it?

The howls continue as Wyatt trudges down the street alone. Suddenly he doubles over, clutching his abdomen in agony, staring at his bloody hands….

EXT – ALLEN STREET – DAY

The wagon bearing Morgan’s pine coffin waits in the street, hitched and ready. Virgil is up front with the women, arm in a sling, pale. Doc and Kate wait on horses nearby. Finished loading, Wyatt looks around. People line the street, watching in silence. Clum and his wounded wife turn away from the window of their lodgings next door, unable to meet his gaze. The very air feels charged with paranoia and recrimination, as if the whole town has suddenly become morally radio-active. Bystanders gape as Josephine steps out of the hotel, regal and impervious as a queen, wearing a gawking scorn like a mink coat, her little white dog scampering after her. Passing Behan, he gives her nasty look and spits. She doesn’t even break stride. Lounging in front of the Crystal Palace with the other Cowboys, Stillwell gives Curly Bill an enquiring look.

CURLY BILL
Naw, she’s nobody. Wyatt junked her.

Passing Wyatt, she doesn’t even glance at him. Doc sighs:

DOC
And so she walked out of our Lives forever.

Without a word Wyatt climbs onto the wagon and shakes the reins, driving off. He pulls up in front of the Cowboys. They make a show of pretending to hide their guns. Wyatt looks straight ahead:

WYATT
I want you to know it’s over. We’re leaving and we’re not Coming back.
CURLY BILL
Well… ‘bye.

RINGO
(sniffs)
Hey, you smell that? Smells like Something died.

CURLY BILL
(stifling a laugh)
Oh, Jesus, Johnny…

Allie’s eyes flare, Louisa stifles a sob. The Cowboys snicker. Wyatt clenches his teeth, still staring straight ahead, and drives on. A few beats then Curly Bill turns to Ike:

CURLY BILL
Take Frank and finish it.

EXT – TRAIN STATION, TUCSON – NIGHT

A train pours steam onto the platform in puffs and clouds while 2 porters load Morgan’s coffin into a boxcar. Up ahead, Mattie and Louisa fumble with luggage while Allie boosts Virgil into a passenger car. As we HEAR the conductor’s voice shouting, “ ‘Board!”’ Ike and Stillwell emerge from the shadows near the scales, crouched behind shotguns. They exchange nods and start forward, cocking their weapons, squinting through the steam:

STILLWELL
That’s Virgil with the women. But Where the hell’s Wyatt?

O.S. VOICE
Right behind you, Stillwell.

They spin around. Wyatt stands behind them, looking down the barrels of Virgil’s big 10 gauge. Stillwell raises his shotgun, Wyatt FIRES. Stillwell hits the floor in a crumpled heap, his torso a smoking bundle of bloody rags. Screams ???????????
WAGONMASTER
Rest of us’re 3 months out of Independence but we’re from Carthage, Illinois originally.

WYATT
Carthage, really? I’m from Monmouth.

WAGONMASTER
Another Illinois man! Practical
Neighbors! Step down, Marshal.
Have a feed.

EXT – WAGON TRAIN CAMP – NIGHT

Lucinda’s ever-silent son sits at a nearby wagon, staring at Wyatt while Lucinda rolls dough, lovely as ever. Just finished telling his story, Wyatt sits by the fire with the wagonmaster and several others. They shaker their head:

WAGONMASTER
Ain’t got law, ain’t got nothin’.
Only thing between us and the Animals. Always the way it goes,
Though. Only way to down an Illinois man’s from behind, the Dogs don’t dare face ‘em. Mr.
Lincoln, Wild Bill, now your Brothers: Illinois men all and
All downed from behind by dirty
Dogs and Democrats. Guess an Ordinary man’d be out for Vengeance but I don’t figure
That’ll answer here. It’s a Reckoning you’re after.

WYATT
If the Lord is my friend.

WAGONMASTER
Let not your heart be faint, let
Your arm be steel—that’s all you Need of the Lord.

Wyatt pauses, nodding, suddenly understanding the truth of it. Looking up, his eyes meet those of Lucinda. She smiles, wiping flour from her hands. Wyatt smiles thoughtfully, moved by this unexpected encounter.

EXT – WAGON TRAIN CAMP – MORNING

Next morning. Doc gallops into camp with McMasters, Texas Jack Vermillion, and Turkey Creek Jack Johnson, exchanging greetings with Wyatt who leads him over to the center of the camp, then:

WYATT
Know why you’re here?
VERMILLION
Way ahead of you, Wyatt. You want
Us to help you get Ike Clanton
And Johnny Behan. Everybody knows
They’re the ones to blame for Your brothers.

WYATT
They’re nothing. They’re nobody.
I want the Cowboys. All of ‘em. I Mean to break ‘em up, drive ‘em
Out of the territory.

JOHNSON
Are you out of your mind? What on Earth’d make us—

WYATT
(takes out wad of bills)
I’ll pay you 500 each in advance
And I’ll mount you on those.

He points to his 5 magnificent blacks tied nearby. They look them over as Wyatt takes out a stack of warrants.

WYATT
Got a sheaf of federal warrants.
Being in the Territories it’s up
To our discretion how they’re Served. That means we got the Cowboys without quarter. The Black flag, brother. No
Prisoners, no mercy, amen.

VERMILLION
(to Johnson)
500… Year’s wages. And I never even saw a horse like that.

JOHNSON
You crazy? It can’t be done.

MCMASTERS
It might be done. If we hit the Waterholes through the southern Dragoons, the Whetstones and Huachucas, we could take ‘em on
In pieces, run off their herds.
(faces Wyatt)
Keep your money. I’ll show you
Where those waterholes are. Just Promise me you’ll finish it. No
Matter what happens you’ll see it
Through to the end. I’ll have Your hand on that.
They shake. Vermillion and Johnson confer in whispers, then:

VERMILLION
We come through this in one Piece, can we keep the horses?

Wyatt nods. Vermillion nods to Johnson who crouches down with a pair of dice. He makes one pass, two passes… Finally:

JOHNSON
Crapped out. Okay, we’re in.

EXP – WAGON TRAIN CAMP/DESERT – DAY

The thoroughbreds are saddled and waiting, each with a rifle in a scabbard and a double-barreled shotgun across the saddle fork. Lucinda’s son looks on with gathering awe as Wyatt’s men, each carrying 2 pistols, face their boss.

WYATT
The minute we start we’ll be Going against local and county
Law. If we fail the U.S.
Government won’t be able to lift
A finger to help us. Nevertheless
I want you to understand we carry
The full force and authority of
The law of this land.

They exchange glances, each man feeling a little shiver at the magnitude of what they’re about to attempt. Wyatt faces them:

WYATT
Raise your right hands. Do you
Solemnly swear to uphold the laws
And constitution of the United States of America and to protect her citizens to the best of your Ability, even at the cost of your Own life?

All chorus, “I do”, except for Doc who rolls his eyes. Finally:

DOC
Oh… All right.

Wyatt hands each a Federal Deputy’s badges. Doc waves his away:

DOC
You know why I’m here. My
Hypocrisy only goes so far.

Wyatt shrugs. They mount up, about to begin, but suddenly:

LUCINDA
Wait!
Lucinda runs up to Wyatt, reaching up and tying a blue and gold silk scarf around his neck.

LUCINDA
Your colors.

Wyatt nods his surprised thanks as the wagonmaster steps up:

WAGONMASTER
Good luck, boys. And give ‘em hell!

They shake hands then Wyatt motions to his men. They take off at a graceful lope, riding through camp toward the deadfall and the desert beyond. Unable to contain himself any longer, Lucinda’s son bounds up onto a wagon, waving and shouting, spurring them on with a spontaneous frontier toast:

LUCINDA’S SON
Wyatt Earp, the two-gun man,
Whistling death and bloody
Murder! Wyatt the widow-maker,
Avenging and bright, purple
Poison on horseback with Lightning in his eye and thunder
In his heart! Wyatt and his he-Devils, holy terrors and true,
Five black centaurs blowin’ fire
And quicksilver! Ride out and Charge and shoot and strike and Cleave and hack and thrust home!
Don’t let up and give no rest and Never call retreat till the last
One’s smashed and smote and Runnin’ for cover. Best ‘em all
And break ‘em up and bang their Heads together in a bunch and Give no quarter though they be
Ten times ten thousand!

Wyatt turns in the saddle, sweeping off his hat with a cavalier’s flourish as he and his men take the deadfall in a single bound and pass into the desert. An immigrant FATHER grabs his infant son, lifting him up.

ILLINOIS MOTHER
What’re you doing?

ILLINOIS FATHER
Someday he’ll be able to say he
Was there when Wyatt Earp rode
Out to bring the law.

Music up, avenging and bright, as Wyatt and his men ride through the desert, 5 abreast on their giant chargers, glossy black coats shimmering in the sunlight, hoofbeats pounding in unison.

WYATT
All right, let’s wring ‘em out!

They break into a dead run, streaking across the frame. As they crest a rise the ground seems to drop from under them and for a single perfect moment it appears as if they’re airborne, flying across the skyline like the winged horsemen of myth. Johnson turns to Vermillion, laughing at the sheer joy of being alive:
JOHNSON
Like flyin’, son. Just like flyin’.

EXT – RUSTLERS PARK – LATE DAY

The sun just starts to dip behind the near end of the ridge overlooking the camp where on one side Florentino and several Cowboys sit in a circle, playing poker while others recline on bedrolls, laughing and drinking. On the other side, at the foot of the ridge, Spence, Pony Deal, and 2 others crouch over a fire, cooking. Suddenly the cattle nestled under the far end of the ridge start bleating. Spence turns to Pony Deal who shrugs:

PONY DEAL
Maybe they smell a wolf.

SPENCE
(turns to other Cowboy)
Go up there and take a look.

The Cowboy mount a pinto pony and lopes up and over the far side of the ridge. Spence and the others continue cooking. Moments later a CRASHING SOUND comes echoing over the ridge like thunder. The Cowboys look up, startled. Pony Deal points:

PONY DEAL
Look!

The pinto gallops riderless back over the ridge. The Cowboys exchange confused glances, all attention focused on the far end of the ridge. Then the five black horsemen ride out of the sun, gliding like apparitions up and over the near end of the ridge and bearing down on the unsuspecting camp with the speed of a flame. They are within a few yards of the fire when Johnny Barnes suddenly spots them and:

BARNES
Look out!

Spence and the others turn and just have time to gasp before Wyatt and his horsemen SLAM into them with terrifying impact, the bodies disappearing under their horses’ hooves. The Cowboys recoil in total shock, jumping up from bedrolls, stumbling in confusion, scrambling to get out of the way as the possemen plow through the fire and roar into camp, pistols BLAZING in air, horses rearing and snorting.

WYATT
United States Marshals! Reach!

Everyone freezes. A worried-looking Florentino shrinks back behind the others, trying not to be spotted. Meanwhile Doc leans down and pokes his pistol into a nearby Cowboy’s forehead.

DOC
Say something witty.

They herd the Cowboys over to one side of camp, shouting, “Get over there!”, “Move it!”, etc. But Barnes brasens up to Wyatt:

BARNES
Hey, you can’t come—

A loud crack as Wyatt’s quirt lays his face open to the bone.
WYATT
One more word and I’ll blind you.
Get over there!

PONY DEAL
(to McMasters)
Hey brother, what’re you doin’—

MCMASTERS
I ain’t your brother, I ain’t
None of your damn brothers. Move!

WYATT
All right, run ’em off.

Doc and Wyatt cover the Cowboys while the others scatter their herd with pistol shots. Indignant, Swilling sneers at Wyatt:

SWILLING
Bastard! Stinkin’ bastard! Like
To eat you blood raw!

A queer look in his eye, Wyatt dismounts and faces Swilling.

WYATT
All right, breed. Dig in.

And then Wyatt DRILLS him in the jaw with a straight right hand. Swilling drops like a stone. Wyatt hauls him up by the hair and hammers him left-right-left, steps around, digs down, and pile-drives a left hook to his gut. Swilling topples back into a seated position then rolls over with a moan and passes out. Meanwhile, seeing his chance, Florentino ducks down and makes for the remuda as Doc looks down at Swilling.

DOC
It appears he missed an excellent
Chance to keep his mouth shut.

WYATT
(faces Cowboys)
Felt his liver go on that last
One. Get him to a doctor or he’ll
Be dead in a couple hours.

At the remuda Florentino leaps on a horse and gallops off bareback. McMasters point, pulling his rifle from its scabbard:

MCMASTERS
Florentino! He’s getting away!

WYATT
Drop his horse.

McMasters draws a bead on the retreating form with his ’76 Winchester and FIRES. 100 yards away, the bullet hits Florentino’s horse in the shoulder with a “thunk”. It drops, tumbling end over end and plunging Florentino face-first into the ground. He jumps up, spitting out a mouthful, and starts running. Wyatt leaps on this black and it streaks forward, closing the distance in seconds. Florentino gasps and runs faster, pulling a bellygun from his sash, Wyatt almost on top of him. He turns and FIRES on the run. A branch next to Wyatt’s head EXPLODES. Wyatt keeps coming, drawing his Buntline, impervious, unstoppable. Florentino turns for another shot just as the black PILES into him, sending him flying and tumbling him down an embankment. He scrambles to his feet as Wyatt dismounts, starting toward him with deliberate step, eyes blazing, long-barreled pistol held in front of him. Florentino backs up in terror, gun at his side, shaking his head:

FLORENTINO
I don’t kill your brother! I
Don’t even know him. I was only Lookout. It was money, they give Me twelve dollars! It was money!

WYATT
A human life. Twelve dollars.

Wyatt nods, still coming, cold-blooded murder in his eye. Florentino screams, raising his gun:

FLORENTINO
No!

Wyatt FIRES, blasting Florentino to the ground. He advances, FIRING over and over, emptying his gun into him….

EXT – RUSTLER’S PARK – LATE DAY

The Cowboys watch as Wyatt gallops up, dragging Florentino’s bullet-riddled body behind him. He reins up, un-dallying the rope. The corpse flops at their feet. They jump back, horrified.

WYATT
Look at him. That’s how you’ll
All end up if you don’t get it
Through your head: it’s over.
The Cowboys’re finished. Forever.
So tell the others and get out of
The Territory ‘cause next time I Leave no one alive. Understand?
No one. You been warned.
(to his men)
All right, burn it! Everything!

As his men prepare to fire the camp, several Cowboys move to pick up Florentino’s body, but:

WYATT
Leave that trash where it lays.

EXT – RUSTLER’S PARK – DUSK

Wyatt and his men ride through the blazing camp, the flames lighting up his eyes like a demon’s….

EXT – DESERT CAMP – NIGHT

The possemen crouch by their fire. Doc sits shivering miserably by himself as Vermillion turns to Johnson.

VERMILLION
You know, we might just pull this off.
JOHNSON
Not so sure. Somethin’ tells me
It gets harder from here in.
(pauses)
Should’ve held out for more money.

Meanwhile Wyatt and McMasters confer over a map. Wyatt points to a specific point on the map, very interested:

WYATT
I know that cut. You mean there’s
A waterhole near there?

MCMASTERS
But this time they’ll be ready.

WYATT
We’ll see about that.

EXT – DESERT/MOUNTAIN CUT – DAY

Now we see what so interested Wyatt—it’s the same mountain cut where he and Josephine met. Pony Deal and a party of 10 Cowboys ride through the desert 300 yards from the cut, pushing a herd.

PONY DEAL
Keep your eyes open for Earp’s
Bunch. Swear to God, ain’t gonna
Get the drop on us this time.

1ST COWBOY
Riders up ahead! …four, five.
It’s them all right!

They look. Wyatt and his horsemen stand waiting at the mouth of the cut. They tense, the 1st Cowboy squinting against the sun. At the cut, Wyatt and his men poise themselves, Doc nodding:

DOC
They saw us. Here they come.

The Cowboys charge forward, outnumbering them better than 2 to 1 and only 100 yards away. The possemen choke up on their reins, alerting their horses for action as:

WYATT
Wait… wait… steady…

75 yards and the first shots RING out, ricochetting off the walls of the cut. The others blanch but Wyatt stays cool, waiting, 50 yards… 40 yards… till we can see their eyes and:

WYATT
Now!

They whirl around and disappear into the cut. The Cowboys keep coming. Wyatt’s group reaches the little trail leading up the wall of the cut he used to avoid Josephine. They clamber up the side of the cut at a bounding gallop, unseen, as moments later the Cowboys gallop by and continue through into the desert on the other side. Wyatt’s group careens up and around the high mountain wall as if on a roller-coaster, following the tiny, narrow path at a breathtaking clip, the trail finally plunging them back into the draw behind the Cowboys. They speed up to the opposite mouth of the cut, drawing their pistols as the Cowboys gallop into the desert before them, unaware.

Wyatt

Lay on!

They CHARGE forward. Seeing the empty desert ahead, the Cowboys pull up, looking around in confusion. Suddenly a VOLLEY of GUNFIRE hits them from behind, knocking several from the saddle.
They spin around just as Wyatt’s group SLAMS into them HEAD-ON, guns BLAZING, Cowboys tumbling from the saddle left and right, horses rearing and toppling over backwards.

Pony Deal

Run!

The remaining Cowboys turn and dash into the desert. Wyatt shouts:

Wyatt

Come on!

Wyatt’s group CHARGES, the thoroughbreds closing the distance in seconds. Vermillion stands in his stirrups, roaring like an animal as he PLUNGES into them, swinging his quirt like a saber and LASHING a Cowboy across the face, making him tumble to the earth and bounce over the rocks like a rag doll.
McMasters closes with another, throwing an arm around him and JERKING him from the saddle, SNAPPING his neck. Doc overtakes a 3rd, jams his pistol into his face and FIRES point-blank, blackening his face with soot and BLOWING out the back of his head as he falls. Reins in his teeth, shotgun at his shoulder, Johnson comes up behind a 4th and FIRES. The Cowboy’s head DISAPPEARS in a cloud of pink vapor, the body dropping like a stone….

Wyatt bears down on Pony Deal at a dead run. Pony Deal turns in the saddle and FIRES at him. We feel a surge of breathless exhilaration as Wyatt swings out of the saddle like a Commanche and ducks his body down against the side of his horse, hiding in its lee. Pony Deal turns for another shot only to see an apparently riderless horse overtake him. But in the next instant Wyatt darts around under his horse’s neck and FIRES, blowing Pony Deal head-over-heels off the back of his horse. Wyatt bounds back into the saddle as McMasters rides by, drawing a bead with his rifle on the lone survivor, the 1st Cowboy. Only a few yards in front of them, he whips his horse frantically, trying to get away. McMasters is about to fire when Wyatt rides up, deflecting the shot. The Cowboy makes it over a rise and disappears.

McMasters

What’d you do that for?

Wyatt

So he can tell the story.

_EXT – COWBOY CAMP – NIGHT_

Curly Bill studies a map drawn in the dirt, listening with Ringo, Ike, etc. while the 1st Cowboy describes the battle:

1st Cowboy

Didn’t make any sense. One minute
  We’re chasin’ em, next they’re Right on top of us. We couldn’t
  Stop ‘em, they got everybody.
  Just everybody!
CURLY BILL
Easy now, it’s only five men.
Been havin’ it their way ‘cause
They been surprising you. Hittin’
The waterholes and that Judas
McMasters is showin’ ‘em right
Where they are. Pretty damn cute.
But nobody’s cute as me.
(point to dirt map)
Next up’s Black Draw. But that Smart Wyatt’ll say no, that’s Where they’ll expect us to hit,
We’ll hit the one after. Iron
Springs. That’s where they show
Next. Only I’m gonna be there
First. And throw a little party.

Curly Bill grins, his coarse face radiant in the firelight…

EXT – WYATT’S CAMP – NIGHT

Doc sits by the fire, shaking and shivering and sweating. Vermillion comes up and tries to cover him with a blanket, but:

DOC
Don’t touch me!

VERMILLION
Sorry…

He pulls back. Doc wraps himself in the blanket. After a beat:

VERMILLION
You really look awful.

DOC
Not half as bad as I feel.

VERMILLION
Then why in hell’re you doin’ This? You ought to be in bed.

DOC
Wyatt Earp is my friend.

VERMILLION
Hell, I got lot’s of friends.

DOC
(turns, glares at him)
  I don’t.

Meanwhile at the other side of the camp, Wyatt and McMasters huddle over the map, Johnson walks up:

JOHNSON
Maybe you ought to have a talk
With Doc, Wyatt. I don’t know if He’s gonna make it.

WYATT
There’s no reasoning with him.

MCMASTERS
(points to map)
Next waterhole’s Black Draw. We Could be there by mid-morning.

WYATT
They’re wise by now. Which is Next, Iron Springs? Yeah, let’s
Try there, Iron Springs.

EXT – IRON SPRINGS – DAWN

A camp near a waterhole with 2 Cowboys crouched by a fire, sipping coffee. Wyatt’s men ride up to the rocks overlooking it and dismount, unseen.

MCMASTERS
There they are. No herd though.

WYATT
We’ll go around that way, come up on foot.

They pull shotguns from their saddles and start down over the rocks on foot, creeping up on the camp, seemingly undetected. But suddenly the Cowboys by the fire dive behind a log and:

MCMASTERS
Ambush! Get down!

And suddenly the deadfall on the opposite side EXPLODES IN GUNFIRE. Vermillion takes a graze and drops with the others, hugging the rocks. A bullet RICHOCHETS into a rock at Johnson’s head, biting his face with fragments, making him wince:

JOHNSON
Christ!

Hunched behind the logs on the opposite side with 15 more Cowboys, Curly Bill raises his head, grinning and shouting:

CURLY BILL
Hey, Wyatt! How the hell are you?

Wyatt and his men react to his voice. The fire continues. Suddenly there’s MOVEMENT in the rocks above them. Doc points:

DOC
Look!

CURLY BILL
Got some boys workin’ around
Those rocks behind you. Another
Minute or two, gonna have you in
A crossfire! How do you like that?

Seeing the spot they’re in, McMasters turns to the silent Wyatt:

MCMASTERS
He’s right. They get set up in Them rocks it’s the end for us.

And now for the first time we see fear in these men, actual naked fear. But Curly Bill laughs, having the time of his life.

CURLY BILL
‘Course you could give yourselves up and we could have a party!
Then what larks!

Crouched by Curly Bill, Barnes chuckles. A confident ripple of laughter goes through the Cowboy line—they know they’ve got them. On the other side, Vermillion shakes his head grimly.

VERMILLION
Ain’t takin’ me alive, damn it!

McMasters looks at the still silent Wyatt, shrugging helplessly:

MCMASTERS
Think of somethin’ fast or we’re cooked.

They really are at the end of their rope, all looking to Wyatt for a solution. He remains silent. Then suddenly, in this supreme moment, a strange, almost supernatural calm seems to come over him and he says simply:

WYATT
No.

JOHNSON
What?

WYATT
No.

And now we can almost hear the ether RINGING in our ears as Wyatt takes his shotgun and, while the others look on in horror, rises to his feet.

DOC
Wyatt!

Bullets WHIZ around him. Doc jumps up to grab him but a RICOCHET drives him back down. Wyatt advances quickly across the clearing, walking right into the teeth of their guns, repeating:

WYATT
No…

Wyatt’s clothes jerk and ripple as bullets pass through, but he just keeps coming. Seeing this, Curly Bill also stands, a weird, manic elation coming over him. He hoots and howls:
CURLY BILL
Look at that! Yeah! Come and get
Some, boy!

WYATT
No…

Curly Bill waves away his men’s fire and walks toward Wyatt, 12 gauge shotgun in one hand, .45 in the other, BLASTING away.

CURLY BILL
Let me, let me, yeah! Die, you Bastard…

WYATT
No…

Curly Bill FIRES again. Wyatt’s hat flies off. He FIRES again, digging a gash in Wyatt’s boot-heel. Now Curly Bill takes dead aim with his .45 and—CLICK—it’s empty. He tosses it aside. Suddenly a sharp wind gusts up, making the tails of Wyatt’s duster swirl around him like a halo as he advances. Eyes wild with battle rage, Curly Bill quickly raises his shotgun.

CURLY BILL
Die! Son of a bitch! Die!

He FIRES. Wyatt’s coattails EVAPORATE into swirling shreds as he takes deliberate aim with his mighty 10 gauge, hissing through clenched teeth:

WYATT
No!

And with that, Wyatt lets go with BOTH BARRELS. Curly Bill’s mid-section VAPOIZES, the huge double-charge of buckshot RIPPING HIM COMPLETELY IN HALF. The other Cowboys flinch as they’re sprayed with flecks of blood and gore. Barnes screams:

BARNES
Jesus Christ!

WYATT
No!

Eyes burning like two twin hells, Wyatt pulls his Buntline and FIRES. Barnes doubles over. Wyatt FIRES again. Barnes drops. The others recoil, their faces looking as if they are living in a waking nightmare as Wyatt advances on them, STILL FIRING. Another goes down. Doc leaps from the rocks, gun in hand, and:

DOC
Come on!

Now they all rise and OPEN FIRE, advancing 4 abreast, a WALL OF GUNFIRE driving the remaining Cowboys off, running for their horses. Wyatt keeps snapping his empty gun as the others run up.

WYATT
No…
Beside himself, Doc helps Wyatt to a nearby rock, sitting him down and examining him, running his hands all over his body. The others FIRE at the Cowboys retreating on horseback.

DOC
Wyatt, my God! You’re shot to pieces!

WYATT
No…

VERMILLION
Yeah, better run, you bastards!

JOHNSON
(turn to Doc)
How is he?

DOC
(looks up, amazed)
I don’t believe it. He’s clean!

VERMILLION
What? But I saw ‘em—

DOC
I’m telling you, there isn’t a Mark on him.

They look. Meanwhile Wyatt starts to tremble….

EXT – CAMP – NIGHT

They’re camped by a running stream. Wyatt stares into the fire. Doc crouches opposite him, shaking his head:

DOC
I’m a man without fear, Wyatt. I Literally don’t care if I live or Die. But even I can’t fight human Instinct. Somebody suddenly Starts shooting at me, I duck. But you… what on earth were You thinking about?

WYATT
I don’t know. It all happened so Fast. If I’d had a chance to Think about it I guess I probably Would’ve been scared but… Swear To God, Doc, I just don’t know.

At the other end of camp, Vermillion and Johnson sit together. After a beat:

VERMILLION
Hey Creek, you ever see anything Like that before?
JOHNSON
Never even heard of anything like it.

Vermillion nods. Both look shaken to the very core of their beings. Finally:

VERMILLION
I just thought of somethin’ I
Never thought about before.
(pauses, looks at him)
I don’t want to go to hell.

EXT – CAMP – MORNING

Wyatt sits by the fire, sipping coffee. Vermillion and Johnson approach. Johnson drops a wad of money on Wyatt’s bedroll. Wyatt looks up in surprise:

VERMILLION
Talked it over. We decided we Don’t need the money. Took out 13
Dollars each, though. Federal Posseman’s fee. That all right?

WYATT
Sure…

JOHNSON
One thing. We come through this
Alive, can we keep the badges?

Wyatt nods, picks up the money and quietly moves off toward the stream by himself. Moments later, McMasters approaches:

MCMASTERS
Where’s Wyatt?

DOC
Down at the creek. Walking on water.

EXT – COWBOY CAMP – NIGHT

Ringo crouches by the fire with the other Cowboys, his face a deeply shadowed mask. 2 Iron Springs survivors stand before him:

1ST COWBOY
We hit him half a dozen times but
He just kept comin’, walked right
Up to Curly Bill with that 10
Gauge and blew him up!

RINGO
Curly Bill? He killed Curly Bill?

Ringo starts making strange little inarticulate sounds, inhaling and exhaling like an animal, eyes swimming in panic….
2ND COWBOY
He didn’t just kill him, he Burned him down! Blew him in Half! I mean all the way in half,
Like a melon! Then he turned Around with that big Colt and Killed Johnny Barnes, shot up a Couple more ’fore we got out of there. But it was his face, you should’ve seen his face.

RINGO
He’s just a man.

1ST COWBOY
You didn’t see his face

Ringo looks up at them, suddenly dead calm, his face a blank.

RINGO
You see my face, don’t you?

Out of nowhere, Ringo draws and FIRES 2 shots so quickly they sound like one. The 2 survivors drop with bullets through their brains. The others jump, transfixed by the insane brutality of what he’s just done. Ringo draws himself up, in full possession of the situation, the new leader, fearsome, matchless:

RINGO
Everybody get this through their Heads. Wyatt Earp dies. I’m Running the show now and I’m Telling you, Earp dies. His men
Too. They all die. Understand?
We’re gonna kill ‘em. For what They did to Curly Bill we’re Gonna ride ‘em into the ground
And slaughter ‘em like rabbits.
‘Cause this is my time, children.
This is where I get woolly.

EXT – COWBOY CAMP – NIGHT

Later. Most of the others are asleep or talking among themselves as Billy Grounds turns to Zwing Hunt, whispering:

GROUND
What d’you think? I didn’t think Curly Bill could be killed. I’m Tellin’ you, this whole thing’s
Gone sour. We got hands droppin’
Like flies and Ringo’s flat out
Of his mind. I mean, hell
Brother, you feel like ridin’
Against Wyatt Earp?

HUNT
Hell no, brother.
GROUNDS
Then brother let’s you and me cut out.

HUNT
Right with you, brother.

They steal away toward the horses as….

INT – ALLEN STREET – DAY

Ringo faces Behan, grim, intent, while Behan sputters, holding up a San Francisco newspaper:

BEHAN
Are you crazy? It’s front page
News all over the country. It’s Getting out of hand, Ringo. If Things don’t settle down soon—

RINGO
You heard me, Behan.

BEHAN
Ringo, you don’t understand—

Ringo glares at Behan, his eyes burning, implacable:

RINGO
No, you don’t understand.

EXT – COWBOY CAMP – DAY

Ringo rides up with Behan and dismounts. A 3rd Cowboy steps up:

3RD COWBOY
Billy Grounds and Zwing Hunt ran
Out. Four, five others, too.

RINGO
Who cares? Separate the wheat
From the chaff.

Behan looks worried as Ike and the other Cowboys gather around. Just then Breakenridge rides up.

BEHAN
What’re you doing here, Billy?

BREAKENRIDGE
Curly Bill was my friend. I’d
Like to come with you.

RINGO
Sure, why not?

Ringo slaps the little deputy on the back and turns to his men. His unaccustomed good humor is very troubling.
RINGO
I told you it was time to get
Woolly. Now gather 'round, Children, gather 'round. And Raise your right hands.

EXT – DESERT – DAY

Now we’ve come full circle as Ringo rides across the desert at the head of his men 30 strong, armed to the teeth, full of fight—and all wearing Deputy Sheriff’s BADGES, a posse of outlaws, a miserable Behan bringing up the rear….

EXT – DESERT PLATEAU – DAY

Wyatt and his men watch from a plateau as far out on the horizon, the Cowboy Posse rides out of the sun, drawing closer:

MCMASTERS
That’s Ringo out front. And There’s Behan. Must be 30 of ‘em.
What the hell… they’re wearin’
   Badges.

They all exchange looks of disbelief, then:

WYATT
Mounts’re getting jaded. We’re Gonna have to find a place to Rest ‘em up.

Suddenly looking very sick, Doc sways dizzily in the saddle. Wyatt dismounts, reaching for him. The others do the same:

WYATT
Doc…

   DOC
   Don’t touch me, God damn it! Just Don’t touch me! Come on…

Doc turns his horse, as if to ride on, then faints dead away.

WYATT
Grab him.

They all catch him, easing him to the ground as…

EXT – HOOKER’S RANCH – DAY

Wyatt’s group rides over the hill overlooking the ranch house Vermillion keeping Doc in the saddle.
Hooker and 3 of his hands rides out to them:

   WYATT
   Horse’re pretty well fagged and
   We got a sick man with us.
HOOKER
You can put up at my ranch if you want.

Wyatt nods. Hooker motions down the hill toward his house....

INT - BEDROOM, HOOKER’S RANCH – LATE DAY

Doc lies in bed, semi-conscious, white as a sheet, drenched in sweat. The others look on, worried. Hooker shakes his head:

HOOKER
I’m no doctor but he looks pretty bad.

His face creased with worry, Wyatt sits down next to Doc. McMasters motions to the others. They file out, leaving Wyatt alone with his friend....

EXT - HILL OVERLOOKING CROSSROADS – SUNSET

Grounds and Hunt ride up and stop on the top of a hill overlooking a mountain crossroads somewhere in the Whetstones.

HUNT
What’s it gonna be, brother?

GROUND
I don’t care. Colorado, New Mexico, ‘long as we’re out of the Territory.

Suddenly a STAGECOACH comes into view, making its winding way through the crossroads below. Hunt points, grinning:

HUNT
Just what we need. Travelin’ money.

They spur their horses down the hill, drawing their guns....

EXT – COWBOY CAMP # 2 – NIGHT

The Cowboy posse is camped in a draw up in the Whetstones. They look up as the stage rolls up and stops. Shouting and commotion as Behan and Breakenridge approach and confer with the driver, then Behan turns to Ringo:

BEHAN
Robbery. 2 men stuck ’em up and Killed a passenger. One of ’em Rode a Mexican saddle, the other Had a Mother Hubbard. Billy Grounds and Zwing Hunt.

Behan opens the door. Mr. Fabian lies inside cradled in Josephine’s arms, surrounded by the other actors in the troupe. Reclined at full length, head back, he looks like the dying Hamlet, even more beautiful than in life. Breakenridge gasps:
BREKENRIDGE
Oh, no…

JOSEPHINE
We’re headed for a booking in Denver. They tried to take my Watch. He cursed them for cowards And they shot him. He may’ve been Vain and an actor but he was Better than all of you. And Gentler and braver. I don’t Understand any of this, I only Know it’s ugly. You’re all ugly And he was beautiful, he tried to Put something fine into your ugly World and you killed him for it. Anyway the ones who did it are headed north. Not that you care.

Ringo shrugs. His soft face suddenly turning resolute. Breakenridge goes to his horse and mounts.

BEHAN
Where’re you going? Get back here!

The little deputy straightens his spectacles, turning to Behan:

BILLY
I’m sorry, sir, but we got to Have some law.

And he rides off alone into the Whetstones. Behan sputters, but:

RINGO
Let him go. Who cares?

EXT – HOOKER’S RANCH – NIGHT

The stage is stopped out front. The driver waters the horses and the actors mill around silently. Wyatt and Hooker walk out:

HOOKER
Had a holdup. Came her to water Their horses before pushin’ on.

Seeing each other, Wyatt and Josephine freeze. Wyatt approaches:

WYATT
Sorry about your friend. (pauses) And I’m sorry about…

JOSEPHINE
I forgave you the moment you said it.

WYATT
You did. Well… thank you.
The driver jumps back onto the stage, motioning to the others.

    JOSEPHINE
    I have to go.

    WYATT
    Wait!

She stops. Wyatt falters. There’s so much he wants to say, but… Finally:

    WYATT Goodbye.

Wyatt opens the coach door for her. She gets in. It pulls out with a crack of the driver’s whip. She and Wyatt hold each other’s gaze as the stage recedes into the distance. Then:

    WYATT
    Damn… Damn!

Creek Johnson steps up next to him. Wyatt looks at him:

    WYATT
    See how she breezed out of here.
    Like she had wings. Funny thing
    But I can’t really remember how
    She looked. I can remember parts
    Of her clear as crystal, her Mouth, her walk, how she shut her Eyes when she laughed, little Bits and pieces, but not the Whole package. Can’t put it
    Together for some reason.

    JOHNSON
    Good God, you’re really—

    WYATT
    Cards in spades. I’m in love with Every second of her life. Hell,
    I’ll probably love her when I’m dust.

EXT – COLD CAMP – NIGHT

A cold camp in the hollow of a mountain. Wrapped n blankets, Grounds and Hunt sip cold coffee. Grounds shivers. Hunts pats him:

    HUNT
    No fire tonight, son. Too many Riders out.

Grounds grunts. Suddenly there’s an O.S. SOUND. Both jump up.

    HUNT
    Who’s that?
Breakenridge steps from the shadows, Winchester at his shoulder, squinting through the dark with his spectacles.

BREAKENRIDGE
It’s Deputy Breakenridge.

They relax and lower their pistols, heaving sighs of relief.

HUNT
Sister Boy! Thank God, we was afraid—

BREAKENRIDGE
You shouldn’t’ve killed Mr. Fabian. You shouldn’t’ve done that. It was wrong. I’m takin’ you both in for it.

HUNT

BREAKENRIDGE
Don’t want to kill you but I will if I have to. I’m warning you.

GROUND
No, I’m warning you, Sister Boy!

Grounds steps forward menacingly. Breakenridge tenses:

BREAKENRIDGE
Don’t try it!

GROUND
Sister Boy, just go to hell!

Grounds raises his pistol. Breakenridge recoils in fright, stumbling backward in the dark, and his rifle accidentally FIRES. Grounds drops like a stone, a look of utter disbelief on his dying face. Hunt looks at him in shock then turns on Breakenridge, raising his gun and snarling. Breakenridge FIRES again. Hunt grabs his midsection, dropping his gun and falling to his knees. He looks up at Breakenridge who shrugs timidly:

BREAKENRIDGE
Sorry.

Hunt falls over, dead. Breakenridge stares at the bodies, hardly believing it himself….

EXT – FRONT PORCH, HOOKER’S RANCH – MORNING

Wyatt and his men are on the porch, listening to Hooker:

HOOKER
…brought ’em in draped over their saddles. Little Billy Breakenridge. Sister Boy. He done
Wyatt shakes his head, hardly comprehending what he started.

EXT – COWBOY CAMP #3 – DAY

The Cowboys are camped on a mountaintop overlooking Hooker’s ranch in the valley below. A messenger rides up with a letter for Behan as Ringo paces, studying the set up with Ike.

RINGO
Hooker’s got around 15 or 16 Hands. We could take ’em right Enough but it might be a mess. Keep the place bottled up for Now, see if we can figure a way To flush ’em.

Behan suddenly steps up, beside himself, holding up his message:

BEHAN
It’s too much! It’s completely Out of hand! Governor Gosper’s Talking about asking the President to send in the Army! Listen Ringo, you’ve got to get This over with and you’ve got to Do it now. One way or another.

EXT – FRONT PORCH, HOOKER’S RANCH – LATE DAY

Wyatt stands on the front porch, looking through the front door to the back bedroom where Doc lies unconscious while Hooker and the others look on:

WYATT
We should get moving.

VERMILLION
Doc’s just in no kinda shape.

HOOKER
Don’t have to bother about that. Took a vote. Cowboys or not, you Can stay here as long as you want. Anyway maybe you done enough. I Mean you whittled ‘em down Considerable, now there’s talk of Sendin’ the Army in here. Ask me, You done enough.

RANCH HAND
(rides up, points) Rider comin’ in under a white flag

They look up as the 3rd Cowboy rides up with a white kerchief.
3rd Cowboy
Got a message. Ringo wants McMaster to come over to our Camp for a parley.

MCMASTERS
He didn’t figure on all the stink
This is causin’. Might be he’s lookin’ to strike a bargain. If So, he probably figures he needs
Somebody like me who talks his Language. Could be we got him.

WYATT
I don’t like it.

MCMASTERS
Might as well hear him out.
Anyways, what choice we got?
(Mounts horse, whispers)
But no matter what happens, see
It through to the end. If you don’t I’ll curse the day I ever laid eyes on you.

Before Wyatt can answer, McMasters rides off with the Cowboy….

EXT – HOOKER HILL COWBOY CAMP #3 – LATE DAY

McMasters rides up with the 3rd Cowboy. Riding through camp, all his former comrades flares at him with pure hate. Only Ringo smiles, stepping up as McMasters dismounts.

RINGO
Well hello, Sherm.

MCMASTERS
You wanted to talk?

RINGO
Yeah, kinda, wanted to see if you’d join back up with us.

MCMASTERS
That what you got me up here for?

RINGO
You’re a Cowboy, you’re a Brother. Come back, no hard Feelings.

MCMASTERS
Forget it, Ringo.

RINGO
Isn’t there anything I can say
That’ll change your mind? You’re Gonna stay with your new friends?

MCMASTERS
‘Least they don’t scare women.

RINGO
You’re the boss. One thing, though.

Ringo moves closer, looking him in the eye and smiling:

RINGO
How you gonna get back to ’em?

EXT – HOOKER’S RANCH – LATE DAY

The 3rd Cowboy rides up to the ranch house, dumps a large SOMETHING in front, and gallops back to just within earshot as Wyatt and his men run up. The object is a human corpse and though we can’t see what was done to it, the expressions on their faces are plain enough.

VERMILLION
Why couldn’t they’ve jus killed him?

3RD COWBOY
(shouts)
Ringo wanted to be sure he got
Your attention, Marshal. He wants
A straight-up fight, just you and Him, settle this thing once and For all. You win, we quit the Territory; Ringo wins, your Deputies get safe conduct to the Colorado line. Sundown today in
The oak grove at the mouth of Sulphur Springs Canyon. Ride out
With your escort, we’ll meet you.

WYATT
You tell Ringo… just tell him
I’ll be there.

JOHNSON
Wyatt, are you crazy?

WYATT
I made a promise.

VERMILLION
Wyatt, listen, you can’t beat
Him. You’re good and God knows
You got the courage, but you
Ain’t in Ringo’s class. Hell,
He’s the best that’s ever been.
‘Cept maybe for Wild Bill.

JOHNSON
He’s right, Wyatt. Ringo could Put five into you before you
Could even get one into him.

WYATT
But I’d do it, I’d get that one
Into him. So help me God, I would.

JOHNSON
All right Wyatt, maybe you can.
But you gotta die to do it.
Understand? You gotta die!

In tight on Wyatt as these words sink in and….

INT – BEDROOM, HOOKER RANCH – LATE DAY

It’s late and the last rays of the sun come through the window, falling on the bed where Doc lies, awake but looking like hell. Wyatt sits next to him, staring at the floor. After a moment:

WYATT
What makes a man like Ringo, Doc?
What makes him do the things he does?

DOC
A man like Ringo’s got a great
Empty hole right through the Middle of him and no matter what
He does he can’t ever fill it. He Can’t kill enough or steal enough
Or inflict enough pain to ever
Fill it. And it drives him mad.
Sick mad. Cold and dirty.

WYATT
So what does he want?

DOC
What does he want? He wants revenge.

WYATT
Revenge? For what?

Doc looks at him, a look of purest sadness in his sunken eyes.

DOC
Being born.

Wyatt looks down again and it’s a long time before he speaks:

WYATT
Remember how I said it all
Happened so fast with Curly Bill
I didn’t have time to think about it?
Well I’ve had plenty of time
To think about this. I spent most Of my life since I was born not Knowing what I want out of life,
Just chasin’ my tail. But now,
For the first time I know exactly What I want. And who. And that’s
The damnable misery of it.
(pauses, looks at Doc)
I can’t beat him, can I?

Doc shakes his head. Wyatt nods then stands, ready to exit, but:

DOC
No, wait, I’ll go with you…

Doc struggles to sit up, sweating and trembling, finally falling back down, almost passing out. Wyatt puts a hand on his forehead.

DOC
I’m sorry. I’m sorry, Wyatt. God,
I’m so sorry.

WYATT
That’s all right, Doc. Don’t worry.

DOC
Never got to wear one of those.

Doc points to Wyatt’s badge. He takes it off, pressing it into Doc’s hand. Doc smiles then does pass out. Wyatt exits….

EXT – FRONT PORCH, HOOKER RANCH – LATE DAY

It’s late, almost sunset. Wyatt steps onto the porch where Hooker and the others wait. He glances back into the house, looking at the unconscious Doc through the open bedroom door.

HOOKER
Don’t worry. They want him
They’ll have to go over us first.

Wyatt nods gratefully, offering his hand. Hooker takes it, abashed. Wyatt mounts up with Johnson and Vermillion. They ride off at a slow gallop, 3 figures against the twilight sky….

EXT – HOOKER HILL/COWBOY CAMP #3 – LATE DAY

Ringo waits atop the hill with Ike and the 3rd Cowboy watching as Wyatt’s group rides out:

RINGO
Only three. They left somebody
Behind. Let’s go take a look.

EXT – HOOKER RANCH – LATE DAY

Ringo and the others ride up. Hooker steps up with several hands.

HOOKER
What’re you doin’ here?
RINGO
Who’s in there?

HOOKER
It’s Holliday. He’s sick. Imagine
He’s dyin’.

Ringo squints through the front door of the house to the open bedroom where Doc lies unconscious, chest heaving, sweating.

RINGO
Drag him out here, let’s have a look.

HOOKER
I looked the other way when you
Did a lot of foul things but I
Ain’t lettin’ you torment a dyin’
Man. Not as long as he’s under my Roof. I draw the line there.

Hooker and his men look resolute. Ringo smiles, nodding:

RINGO
All right, Hooker. I’ll be back
In about an hour. We’ll see how Brave you are then.

HOOKER
I’ll be here.

Ringo and his men ride off. At the crossroads they stop, Ike peeling off.

RINGO
Soon as I’m through with Wyatt,
Swarm down with the whole bunch
And finish off Creek Johnson and Texas Jack.

And they gallop off in opposite directions as….

EXT – SULPHUR SPRINGS CANYON – LATE DAY

2 Cowboys, Ringo’s seconds, ride up to where Wyatt and his men stand dismounted, waiting. One points to a thicket nearby:

3RD COWBOY
He’s waitin’ for you by the big
Oak, quarter mile up that trail.

EXT – NORTH ROAD – LATE DAY

Behan and the other Cowboys wait at the road above the canyon. 30 strong, mounted and ready. Ike rides up, full of anticipation:

IKE
Get ready. Soon as Ringo’s done
We’re gonna take care of the others.

    BEHAN
    Aren’t we giving them safe conduct?

    IKE
    Sure we are. All the way to hell.

EXT – SULPHUR SPRINGS CANYON – SUNSET

Sunset. Ringo’s seconds wait nearby as Wyatt whispers to his men:

    WYATT
    They’re not givin’ you any safe
    Conduct. Soon as the shooting
    Starts kick east for the New Mexico line. Well…

Wyatt shakes hands with Vermillion who turns away with emotion, hiding his face. Wyatt turns to Johnson.

    JOHNSON
    Wyatt, I… I ain’t got the words.

    WYATT
    I know. Me neither.

Wyatt pats his shoulder and walks off alone into the thicket, the only sound the musical clinking and chiming of his spurs.…

EXT – THICKET – SUNSET

A gorgeous sunset, yellow and red and magenta. Making his way down the trail, Wyatt looks up at the sky. A flock of wild geese fly overhead in V-formation, oblivious to the human drama below. Wyatt stops, drinking it all in, as if trying to grab all he can in the time left. Suddenly he closes his eyes, falling to his knees, trembling, afraid for the first time. He clasps his hands:

    WYATT
    Dear God, this is the last Battle. I worked it out in my Head every which way and I know
    There’s no way I’m comin’ through
    This alive. You’ve preserved me
    This far so I only ask one more
    Favor: just let me live long Enough to kill that man. Thy will Be done and there’s an amen to it.

Wyatt stands back up, his fear gone, replaced by calm, his face luminous, almost angelic. He walks on, spurs still chiming as.…

EXT – OAK GROVE – SUNSET

A clearing by a creek with a cluster of small oaks. Ringo leans against a tree, sipping from a hip flask, smoking a slim cheroot. We HEAR the CHIMING spurs approach. Ringo looks up as the tall silhouette of his enemy emerges from the shadows of the thicket.
RINGO
Well, didn’t think you had it in you.
(smiles, sets himself)
Shall we?

DARK SILHOUETTE
I’m your huckleberry.

Ringo stiffens as the silhouette steps into the waning light. It’s DOC, pale and drawn, looking like death itself, but awake and ready just the same:

DOC
Why Johnny Ringo, you look like
Somebody just walked over your grave.
(sees his shock)
Oh, I wasn’t quite as sick as I
Made out.

RINGO
My fight’s not with you, Holliday.

DOC
I beg to differ. We started a
Fight we never got to finish.
Play for blood, remember?

RINGO
I was kidding about that.

For the last time, that Cheshire cat smile comes over Doc’s face:

DOC
I wasn’t.
(pins on Wyatt’s badge)
And this time it’s legal.

Ringo nods, his hock replaced by a growing malice. As they set themselves, once again their eyes begin to blaze, boring into each other, their concentrated rage focusing on each other, about to reach critical mass….

RINGO
All right, lunger. Let’s do it.

DOC
Say when.

A long tense moment then both grunt in unison. Blurred movement, the FLASH of a GUNSHOT. Doc slaps his gun back in it’s holster as Ringo stumbles, a bullet hole in the side of his head….

EXT – THICKET – SUNSET

Back in the thicket, Wyatt HEARS the gunshot and starts running…

EXT – OAK GROVE – SUNSET
Blood coursing from the hole in his head, frenzied messages flickering all through his shattered brain, going only on pure hate, Ringo stumbles and jerks, struggling to raise his pistol. Doc dances in front of him, urging him on:

DOC

Come on! Come on!

But finally Ringo falls over into the crook of the oak tree, his pistol firing into the air harmlessly. Doc looks down at him, shaking his head:

DOC

Oh Johnny. You’re no daisy, no Daisy at all.

Just then Wyatt appears, looking at Doc in total shock.

WYATT

What happened?

Doc looks at him like he’s a fool then points to Ringo:

DOC

Poor soul, he was so high-strung.
Afraid the strain was more than He could bear.

Suddenly we hear HORSES crashing through the brush toward them.

DOC

Let’s go! My horse is over here.

They dash off into the thicket. Moments later Ringo’s seconds ride out into the grove. Seeing Ringo’s body, their jaws drop….

EXT – CANYON MOUTH – SUNSET

Vermillion and Johnson practically jump for joy as Wyatt and Doc emerge from the thicket, Doc leading his horse.

VERMILLION

Praise Jesus!

JOHNSON

I’ll be dipped in shit. I will, too.

EXT – NORTH ROAD – SUNSET

Alert by the shots, Ike turns to Behan and the others.

IKE

All right, get ready…

EXT – CANYON MOUTH – SUNSET

Vermillion and Johnson are mounted, watching while Doc tries to climb up into the saddle with excruciating slowness. Though on his feet, it’s clear Doc is as sick as ever, sweating and panting, running on sheer animal courage. Wyatt stands behind him, his hands poised to help, trying to will him into the saddle, jerking his hands behind him every time Doc looks back. Finally, with a last grunt, Doc throws a leg over his horse and drops into the saddle. Wyatt mounts, turns to his men, pointing:

WYATT
All right, what’s it to be? New Mexico’s that way.

JOHNSON
Colorado’s closer

WYATT
So’re the Cowboys. They’re up That road right now, waiting to Jump us.

VERMILLION
We’re the law, ain’t we? Well the Law don’t ride around vermin—

JOHNSON
It rides right at ‘em. Like McMasters said, see it through to The end.

Wyatt looks at Doc, who shrugs. Wyatt swings his horse alongside, suddenly noticing his badge on Doc’s chest. Doc smiles wanly:

DOC
I just wanted to see what it felt Like. Here…

He starts unpinning it but Wyatt stops him, pressing his palm onto the badge over Doc’s heart. A last look around each other then Wyatt signals and they start up the north road at the lope, four abreast, the last charge of Wyatt Earp and his immortals….

EXT – NORTH ROAD – SUNSET

From a lookout position above, a COWBOY calls down to the others:

4TH COWBOY
Riders comin’.

Behan heaves a sigh of relief, glancing around at the others.

BEHAN
Well I guess Ringo did it.

But suddenly Ringo’s seconds gallop up from the flank:

3RD COWBOY
Ringo’s dead

BEHAN
What?
Straining to see in the falling light, the cowboy on the rock shouts excitedly:

4TH COWBOY
That’s Wyatt Earp’s bunch!

The word starts to spread, the crowd of horsemen BUZZING. Suddenly, off in the distance, the 4 horsemen come into view, coming straight at them at a lope.

3RD COWBOY
They’re comin’ right at us!

Down the road, Wyatt and his men pull their shotguns, holding them at the ready as they break into a gallop. The Cowboy on the rock jumps down, mounting his horse.

4TH COWBOY
Here they come! Get ready…

The Cowboys line-up on a rise, blocking the road. They draw their guns. Wyatt and his men keep coming, now 200 yards away. Behan groans, panic sinking sour and heavy, churning his bowels:

BEHAN
Oh, no…

Now Wyatt’s men break into a dead run, hurtling toward them at top speed, their thoroughbreds eating up the distance, now only 100 yards away. The Cowboys tense up more and more, biting lips, grinding teeth. The 4th Cowboy turns to the nearby 3rd Cowboy:

4TH COWBOY
What d’you think?

3RD COWBOY
I think it’s time to start
Workin’ for a livin’.

BEHAN
Me too!

They break and run. So does another. Suddenly the whole mass of them EXPLODES in panic with horsemen riding in all directions, scurrying away like cockroaches from a light. Ike looks around, screaming at them, beside himself as the 4th Cowboy rides by:

IKE
Kill ‘em! Kill ‘em! It’s only Four men! Why don’t you kill ‘em?

4TH COWBOY
Why don’t you?

The others keep going, leaving him behind. But seeing Wyatt bearing down on him, Ike finally bolts himself, pounding off hell-for-leather into the hills. Wyatt and his men keep coming at a full gallop and as they crest the rise, suddenly, as before, the ground seems to fall out from under them and for another burning moment they once again appear airborne, grim-faced avenging angels on winged horses, now even more majestic in the twilight, like a myth made flesh, awesome, superb, and unutterably beautiful. As they approach, only Breakenridge remains, giving them a tentative wave. Wyatt points a finger at him as they ride by in a flash, cresting another rise and passing into legend….
INT – HOSPITAL ROOM – DAY

The CLOCK on the wall of this private DENVER hospital room ticks gently but inexorably as Doc lies in bed with FATHER FEENEY, a Catholic priest, sitting at his side. Painfully emaciated, his breathing shallow and labored, Doc is so weak it’s all he can do to even move his eyes. But he brightens as Wyatt enters:

DOC
Well hell, Wyatt. Wyatt, I want
You to meet Father Feeney. Father
Feeney’s just been initiating me
Into the mysteries of the great
And ancient Church of Rome. You
See, it appears my hypocrisy
Knows no bounds.

WYATT
How you feelin’, Doc?

DOC
Rather an obvious question under
The circumstances, don’t you Agree? A better one might be how Do you feel?

WYATT
(sits down, sighs)
Hurts. Hurts pretty bad.

DOC
I imagine it would, yes. So now
We can add self-pity to your list
Of frailties.

WYATT
All right, Doc…

DOC
You think I’m kidding. You’re the Most fallible, wrong-headed, self-
Deluding, just generally
Benighted jackass I’ve ever Known. Yet, withal, even at your Worst, you’re the only human Being in my entire life who ever
Gave me hope.

WYATT
All I ever wanted was to live a Normal life.

DOC
When will you wake up? You
Wouldn’t know a normal life if it
Bit you in the ass.
WYATT
That’s great coming from you.

DOC
I played the cards I was dealt, Wyatt. Your problem is you’re always trying to play someone else’s. Allow me to tell you the truth and thus set you free: there is no happiness, Wyatt. There is no normal life. There’s only life, that’s all. Just life. The rest is relative.

WYATT
Then what do I do?

DOC
First you can grab that black-haired woman and make her your own.

WYATT
All right. Then what?

DOC
Run. Take that girl and start running. Run and don’t look back. All your life you been running and looking back and just barely existing and calling it getting by. This time run and don’t look back and call it living. Live every second, live it right up to the hilt. Live, Wyatt...
(pauses, takes his hand)
Live for me.

Wyatt stares into his eyes, letting this sink in. Just then, Doc looks up, as if something were pressing on him. Then:

DOC
Wyatt, please, if you were ever my friend, if you ever had even the smallest feeling for me, leave. Leave now. Please.

They look at each other and something passes between them, something so personal and powerful it transcends emotion. Wyatt starts to speak, but:

DOC

Doc turns away. Wyatt exits. Doc looks over at Father Feeney:

DOC
Now let’s see, Father. What was
That monkey show you were talking about?

FATHER FEENEY
You mean Extreme Unction?

DOC
That’s it. Better start that ball rolling.

Father Feeney nods, picking up his Missal. As he starts to intone the Last Rites, Doc looks down at the end of the bed and sees his feet poking through the sheets. They are bare. Doc smiles:

DOC
I’ll be damned…
(looks at Feeney)
This is funny.

INT – DENVER THEATER STAGE – NIGHT

A lively road company production of “H.M.S. Pinafore”. Josephine and 3 chorus girls, all adorable in outsize sailor suits do the seamen’s hornpipe to the resounding applause of the audience….

INT – DRESSING ROOM – NIGHT

Josephine and her fellow chorines, including the 1st Actress from before, all in various stages of undress, sit at the long mirror, removing their make-up and chatting:

1ST ACTRESS
I can’t get used to this thin air
Here in Denver. I thought I was Going to faint on that last buck-
And-wing.

JOSEPHINE
I know, it’s—

Suddenly the door bursts open. Screams and stunned reaction. Wyatt rushes in and goes to Josephine who sits in stunned silence. He falls to his knees and grabs the hem of her robe.

JOSEPHINE
Wyatt! My God…

WYATT
Did you ever see the sun come up
Over the Rockies? It hits all of A sudden and below there’s California and you swear you’re
Looking at heaven.

Wyatt stands, pulling her close, clasping her hands in his:

WYATT
I have nothing left. I have Nothing to give you. I have no
Pride, no dignity, no money. I
Don’t even know how we’ll make a Living. But I promise I’ll love
You every second of your life.

JOSEPHINE
Don’t worry, Wyatt. My family’s rich.

INT/EXT – TRAIN – DAY

Brilliant sunlight, clean, crisp air as a train hurtles through a pass high up in the Rocky Mountains, blowing its whistle and sending a giant plume of steam billowing up over the sheer, towering, snow-topped mountain walls into the crystal-clear sky above. Wyatt leads Josephine by the hand through the parlor car, both hardly able to contain themselves, brimming over with excitement and anticipation, like children waiting for Christmas morning and trying to ignore the group of REPORTERS dogging their footsteps, swarming around them, calling out to Wyatt:

1ST REPORTER
Mr Earp! One minute, please! You
And your four men have just Accomplished in one week what it
Took the Texas Rangers four years
To do. Please, do you have any comment?

Wyatt and Josephine hunch down and duck through a knot of porters into the next car. Only the 1st Reporter gives chase. Moving into the passenger car furthest forward, Wyatt leads her through the door to the platform over the coupling between cars. Chugging up a steep grade toward a high crest, the train is immersed in shadows. Wyatt points ahead to the approaching crest:

WYATT
There. It’ll come up over that ridge.

Inside meanwhile, the 1st Reporter comes through the car and spots them up. A business-type PASSENGER tugs on his sleeve:

PASSENGER
What’s the commotion? Who are they?

1ST REPORTER
Don’t you know? That’s Wyatt Earp, the Lion of Tombstone, and His lady fair.

Outside, still bathed in shadows, Wyatt and Josephine hang onto the railing and lean out, watching in as the train nears the top.

WYATT
Get ready, here it comes! Here it comes!

Then, as if on cue, they crest the mountain and are suddenly bathed in golden sunlight, their heads leaning from the train. Wyatt’s blonde hair and Josephine’s black tresses flowing in the breeze, their faces luminous, looking straight ahead toward their future. Hold on this image as the sun gets brighter and brighter, finally making the frame white-out as we….

FADE OUT:
EPILOG/DESSERT: an OLD MAN and WOMAN walk arm-in-arm through the Mojave, tiny figures in a vast landscape, Sierras looming in the distance.

V.O. NARRATION
“Wyatt and Josephine embarked on a series of adventures throughout the west, making and losing several fortunes, always living the high life, spending every winter, just the two of them, prospecting for gold in the desert foothills of southeastern California. Up or down, thin or Flush, in 47 years they never Left each other’s side.”

The figures of the old man and woman fade away, leaving only the desert and the mountains which are eternal.…

V.O. NARRATION
“Wyatt Earp died in Los Angeles in 1929. Among the pallbearers at his funeral were early western movie stars William S. Hart and Tom Mix.”

Flickering images from early Hollywood silent films split the frame: on one side the grim but impassioned figure of William S. Hart, the original western good-badman crouched menacingly behind a pair of sixguns, his costume dusty and severe; and on the other side Tom Mix, the original western fantasy hero, so light-hearted and optimistic with his sunny grin and fancy white outfit.…

V.O. NARRATION
“Tom Mix wept.”

HOLD on these two images as the music swells and we….

FADE TO BLACK.

THE END